Arlington High School District 214
Arlington Heights, Illinois, Vol. 46

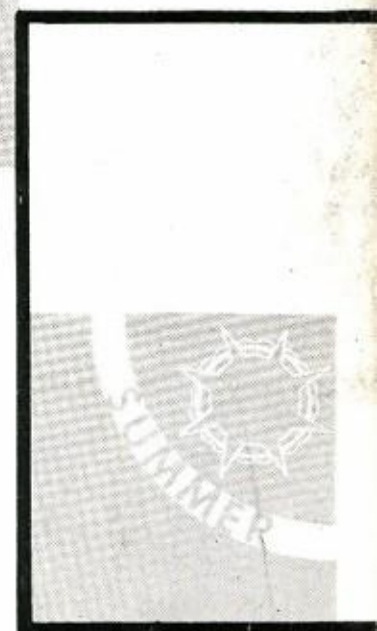

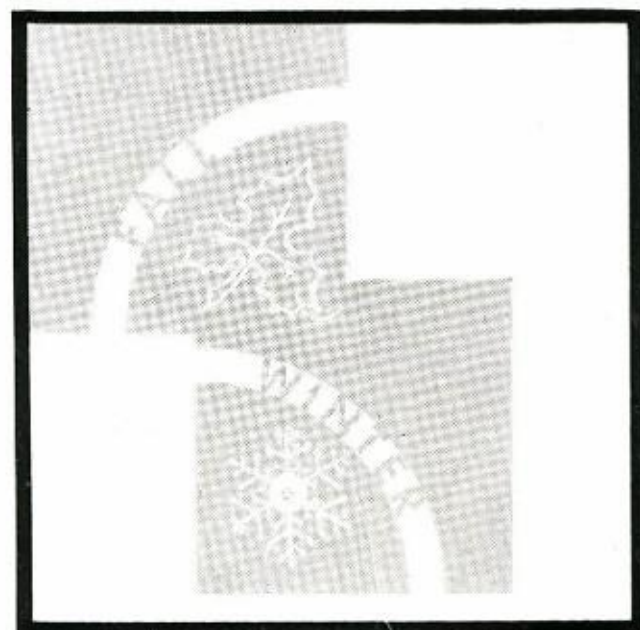

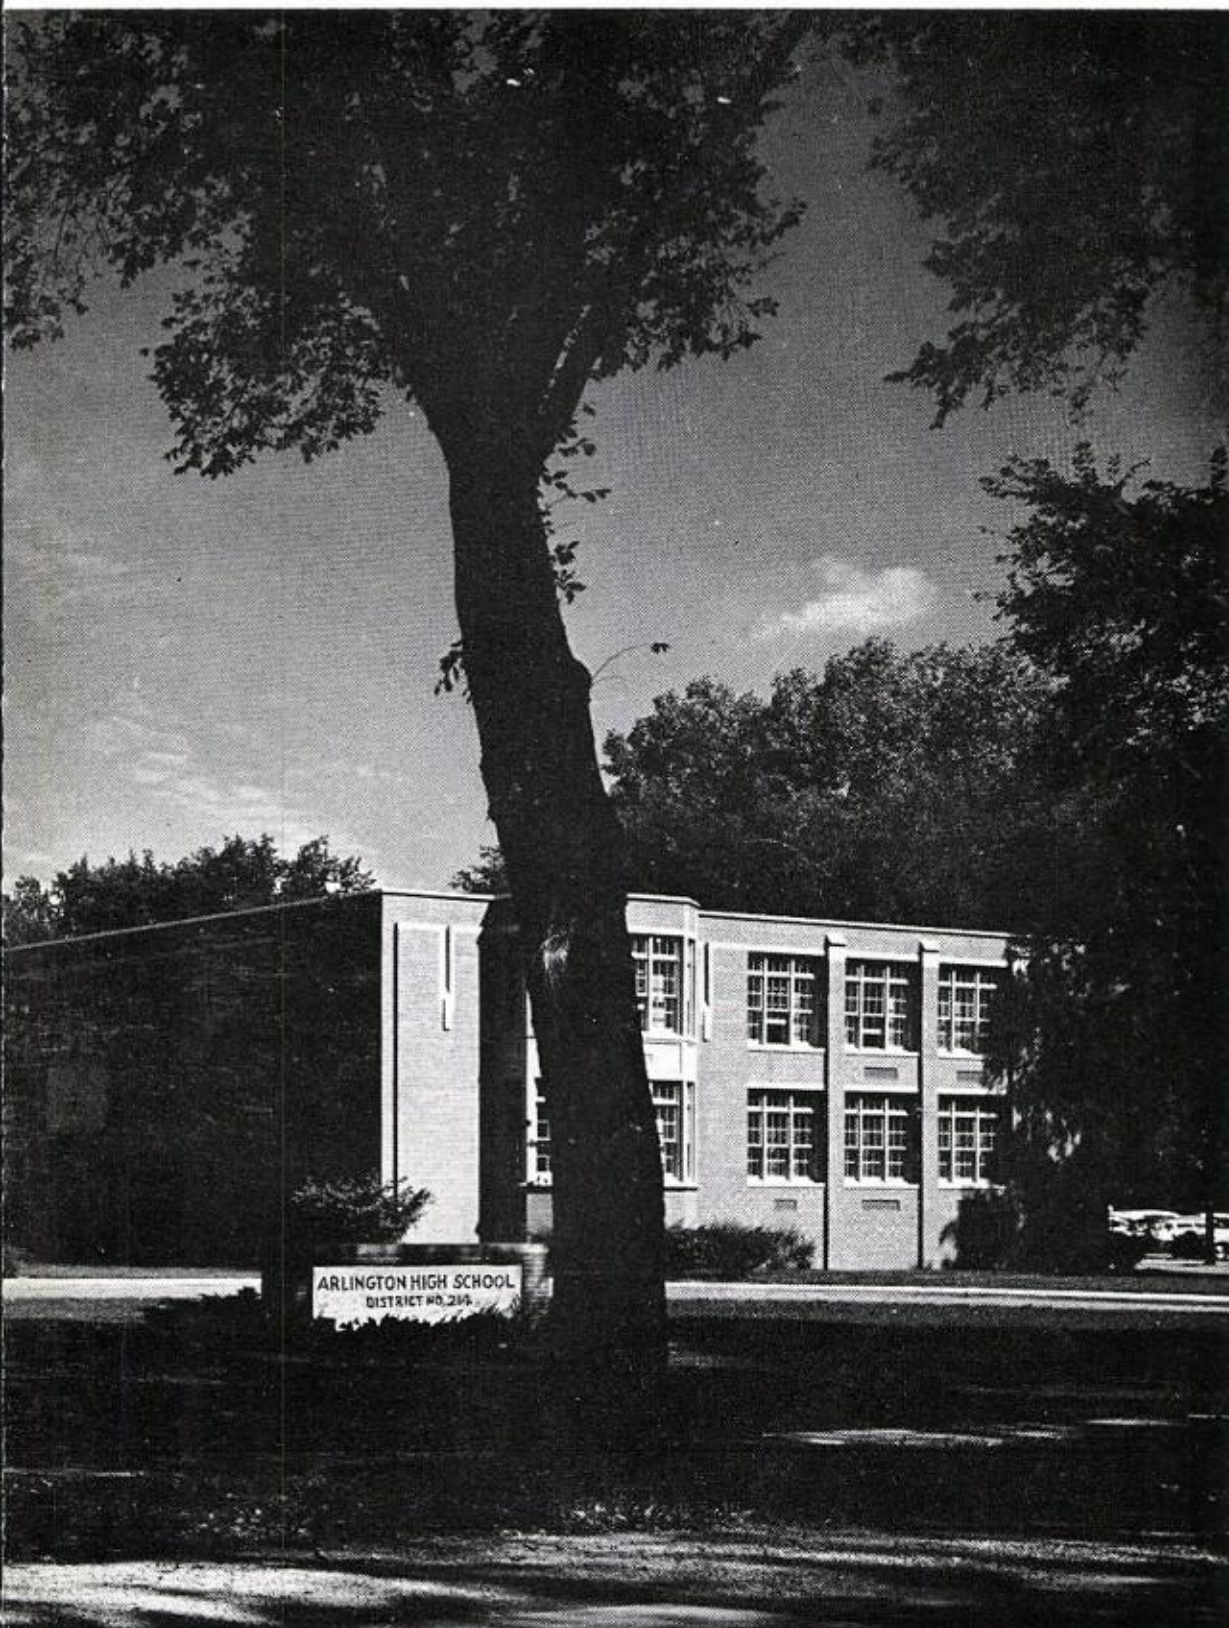

Summer is a time to look ahead. Students, looking on to new classes, new teachers, and new friends, begin to register for the school year.

Fall is a time to be happy. The floats, parade, game, and coronation make Homecoming a memorable occasion.

Winter is a time to produce. Serious learning, an important part of school life, is clearly evident. An exam, quiz, lecture, or term paper measure knowledge.

Spring is a time to live. It is a busy time of the year. Initiations, a music festival, the Orchesis show, and the Washington trip make this a special season. After seniors have received their diplomas, memories of high school life stay with them as they do go on to face a more adult world and further challenges. The summer was a time to look ahead, the fall was a time to be happy, the winter was a time to produce, and the spring was truly a time to live at Arlington.

Academics

Education is the most important part of a student's life at Arlington. Academics encompasses the administration, faculty, and classroom part of the learning experience. Academics changes little with the seasons. The parade of tests, term papers, and lab reports goes on, impervious to the weather. Arlington enjoys a fine academic reputation throughout the state.

Dr. Edward Gilbert pauses momentarily from his various activities as the new superintendent to pose for his picture.

SCHOOL BOARD

William Griffith; Mr. Richard A. Bachhuber; Mr. Arthur E. Aronson; Dr. Frank J. Smith.

AHS Students Receive Administrative Aid

New director of student activities, Mr. Norman Patburg, remained at A.H.S. for only one semester. He was transferred to Forest View to act as assistant principal there. Taking Mr. Patburg's place at Arlington was Mr. Vincent Ahnquist. Mr. Ahnquist was previously music director at Forest View.

Heading Arlington's administration is Mr. Bruno Waara, who is responsible for the over-all operation of the school. Some of his duties include working with faculty committees, parent-teacher organizations, and department chairmen, as well as putting board decisions into effect.

The assistant principal for administrative service, Mr. George Reat, is in charge of maintenance and repair of the building, co-ordinating the use of the building through rentals, and discipline and attendance.

Mr. John W. Rowe, who is Arlington's assistant principal for instructional service, makes adjustments of curriculum and schedule changes.

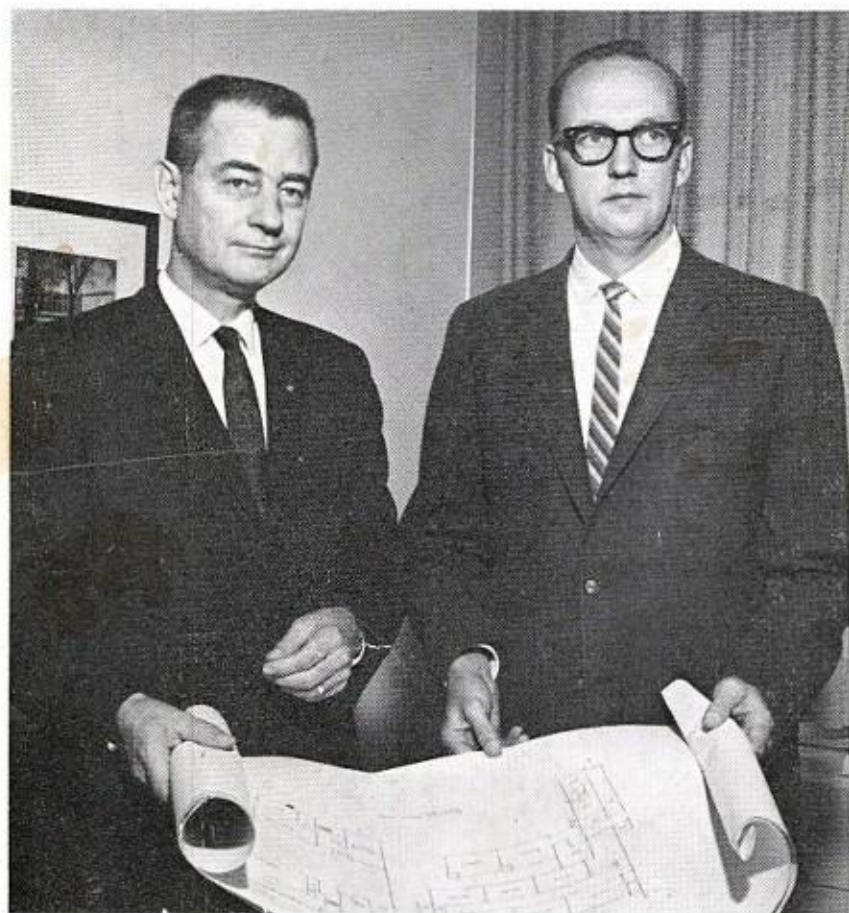

The administration added five new courses to this year's curriculum. Four major cultural areas are studied in depth in World History II. Taught on a college preparatory level, Latin American History is a study of the origins, geography, and development of Latin America, other new courses include General Power Mechanics, special Math Topics, and American Problems.

This year's school board members were Mr. H. W. Armstrong, president; Mr. T. Earl Thompson, secretary; Mrs. Leah Cummins, Mr. Frank J. Smith, Mr. Richard A. Bachhuber, and Mr. Arthur E. Aronson. Elected by citizens of this district, the school board establishes district policy and discusses the problems of schools in this district. The biggest problem of the board this year has been the question of whether to restrict the enrollment of Arlington or expand its facilities.

During the past year Dr. Edward Gilbert began his duties as Superintendent of District 214. Mr. Roderick C. McLennan was appointed to Dr. Gilbert's former position of Administrative Assistant to the superintendent. Together these men formed the administrative head of the five district schools.

Reviewing the floor plan of the school, Mr. Waara and Mr. Rowe look forward to the time when it will be remodeled.

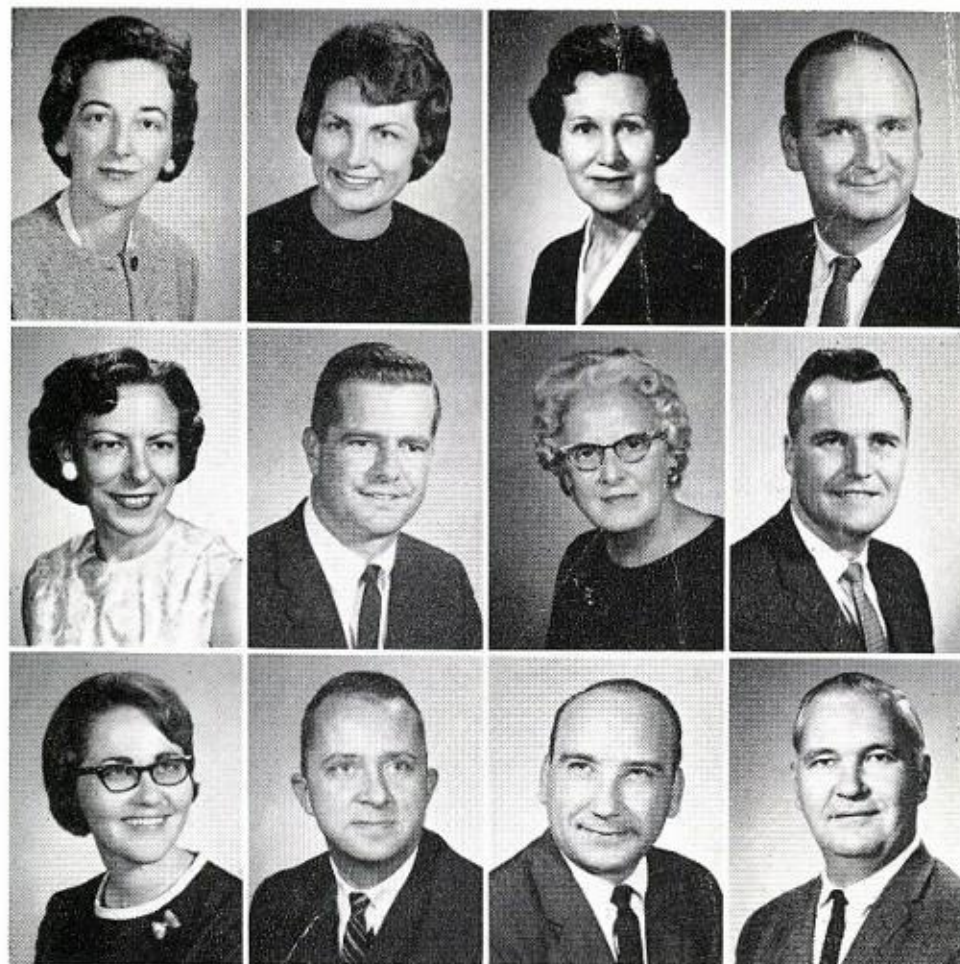

Mr. Patburg, Director of Student Activities, and Mr. Reat, the Assistant Principal, plan the many daily school activities.

COUNSELORS

Guidance Is The Main Aim Of Counselors

Entering high school as a freshman with only a small-scale diagram of the school can be a very bewildering experience without the help of class counselors.

Planning next year's schedule was a headache for students but the counselors advice has helped to smooth out some of their future college plans.

Some of the main duties of the counselors other than making out schedules are contacting parents and teachers on student progress, assisting with the administration on the interpretation of standardized tests, talking to students who have received failing notices, and tending to program changes.

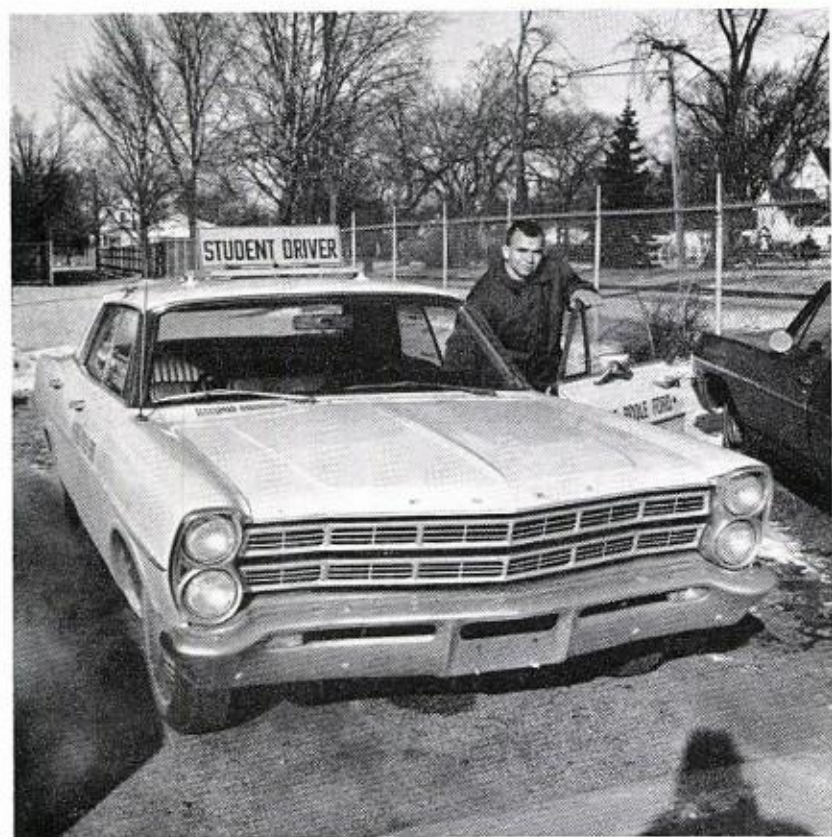

New this year were the career seminars which are sponsored by the counselors. This was replacing the career days which, in past years, were presented in the spring. They are now being held during the lunch hour study halls.

Mr. Schroeder, Mr. Sandvos, and Miss Hampton, senior counselors; junior counselors were Miss Craig and Mr. Emery; sophomore counselors Miss Bazik, Mrs. Claney, and Mr. Hicks; freshman counselors were Mrs. Barber, Mr. Clark, and Miss Mueller.

Junior Mary Kunz asks for advice from Mrs. Claney in selection of her curriculum for her senior year schedule.

Driving Ability Developed By Instruction

"Hmm, I wonder what great lesson I will learn today," ponders Greg Busch before entering the driver training car.

The Driver's Education course at Arlington consists of several phases or parts: classroom, behind-the-wheel, and simulator.

Any student who is sixteen years old is eligible to take the Driver's Education course, however, juniors and seniors have priority over underclassmen.

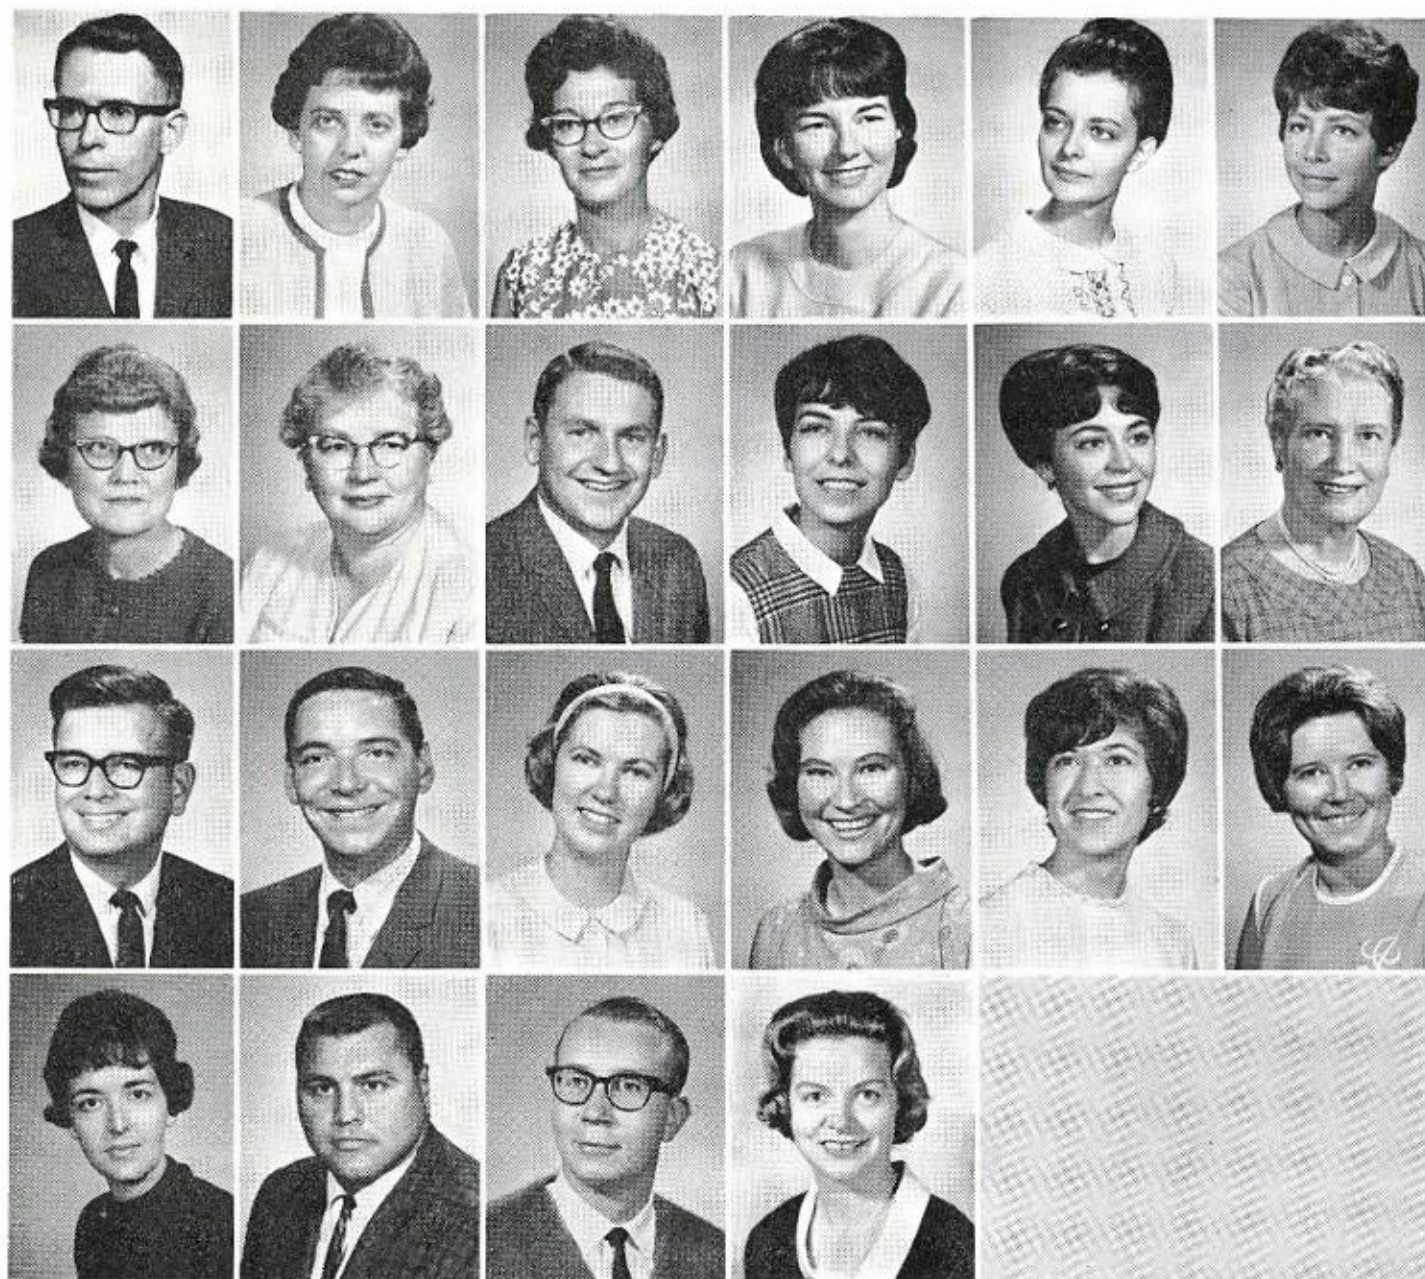

The first phase of the Driver's Education program is the classroom part which students take during their sophomore year. Students must have classroom before they are eligible to take behind-the-wheel. This year the sophomores began classroom Driver's Education in March, and it lasted for six weeks. During this time the student becomes more familiar with the automobile and how it functions. Once a year a state trooper comes in to speak to the class, and there are usually a few other speakers during the course. The students are shown a series of films, and they are made aware of how important it is to be a careful driver.

After a student passes the classroom phase he may sign up for behind-the-wheel. In this course the student actually drives the car under the supervision and guidance of an instructor. Everyone is required to have at least six hours behind-the-wheel. The simulator is sometimes used in place of three hours of actual driving. Driving is a technique that must be carefully taught and mastered by everyone.

Students receive experience and learn techniques of good driving by solving problems the driver simulator provides

Grammar And Literature Team Together

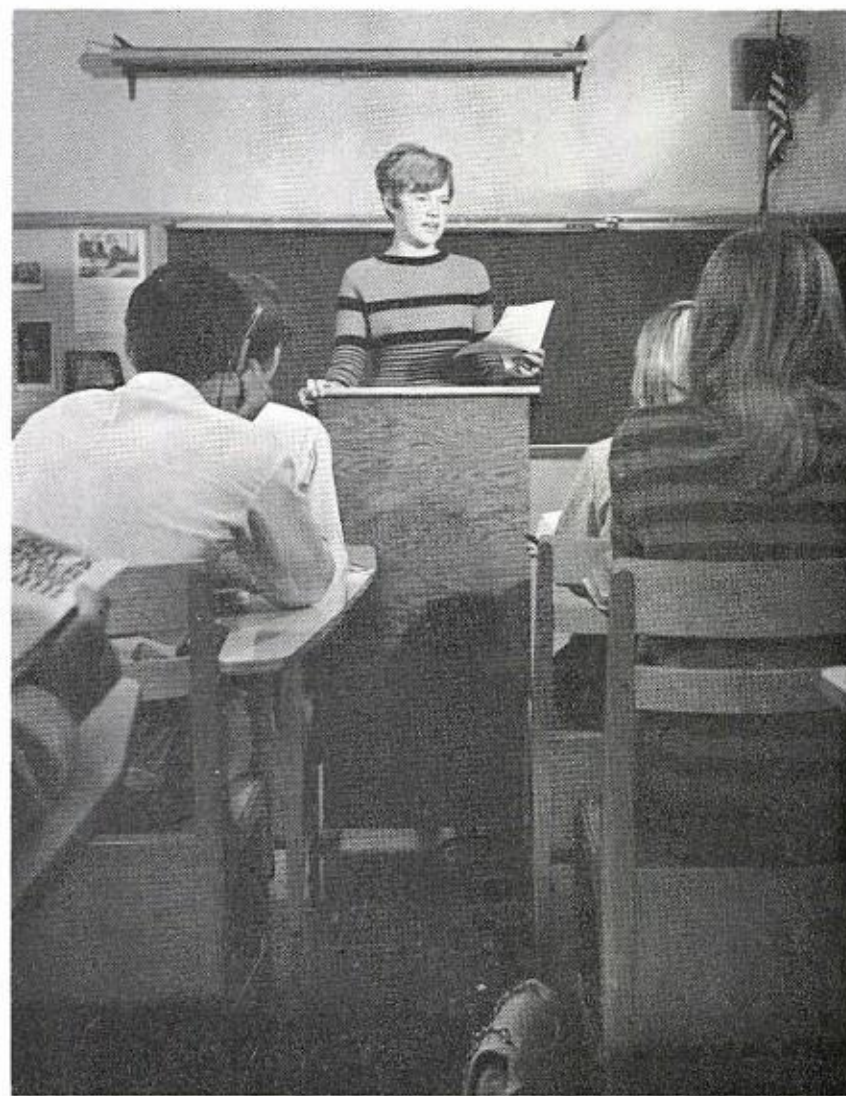

Working to complete term papers for English are Seniors Pam Freuhling, Peg Corwin, and Jim Grossnickle.

English is one important aspect of learning at Arlington. This year the English Department was placed in the experienced and capable hands of Miss Leonhard.

Study was not merely confined to literature and grammar but to the practical application of both. Persuasive Speech was an advanced course for those primarily interested in debate. The student mastered skills that helped him speak intelligently and persuasively. In addition to the semester of speech during the sophomore year, an advanced course in speech was offered for those in junior and senior years. This course gave students more background in all areas of speech. Many concise speeches were required throughout the school year. Play Production was offered to juniors and seniors this year. This course helped interested students appreciate the art of the theater. Drama was also offered to upperclassmen. The aspects of acting, literature, and production were included. An important part of the drama study was working on school plays. Journalism I included the theory of journalism and actual work on producing a newspaper. Journalism II was offered to seniors. It was primarily for the editors of the newspaper.

Many different courses were open to students in Arlington High School. These courses played an important part in the lives of Arlington students. They constituted an addition to our cumulative knowledge.

Sophomore Gail Haemker delivers her persuasive speech as her classmates wait until they will display their talents.

Languages Provide Knowledge Of Culture

Terry Townley, Sue LeBeau, Donna Krilcic, and Jim Sarbaugh bring a seventeenth century French comedy to life.

Latin, Russian, German, French, and Spanish were offered to all Arlington students. The foreign language department was headed by Mr. Nielsen.

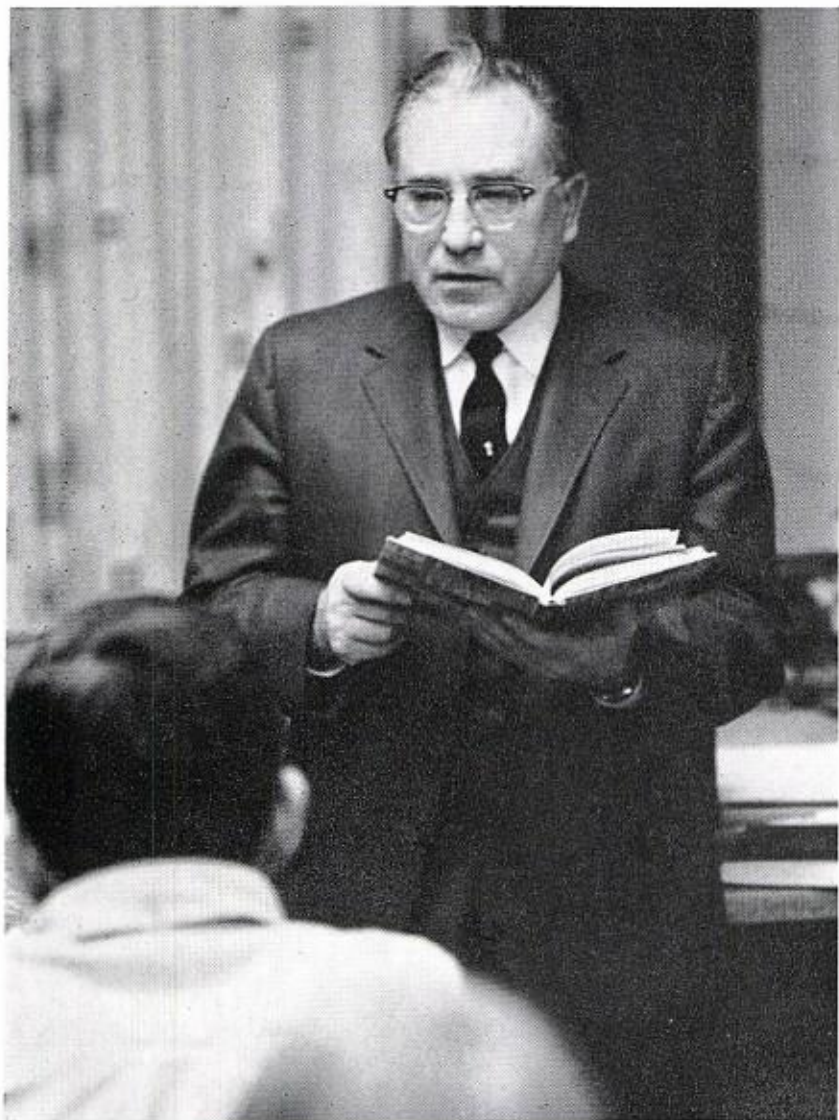

Audio-visual aids were also offered to all classes to help further their knowledge of the language. Through the use of slides, charts, and maps, the students were able to learn more about the cultural background of the country of their language.

Many of the classes made use of the language laboratories. These laboratories were used to enable the teachers to watch the progress of their students in both understanding and comprehension. To further the student's knowledge of a foreign language, the teachers sponsored language clubs. The clubs broadened the student's knowledge of a country through lectures, activities and field trips. Through these clubs, trips to France and Mexico have been planned for the summer.

In the early spring all the students were invited to the Pan Language Banquet. At this banquet each club presented a skit depicting a symbolic scene from their particular country. A wide variety of dishes were served to supply a delectable meal for all.

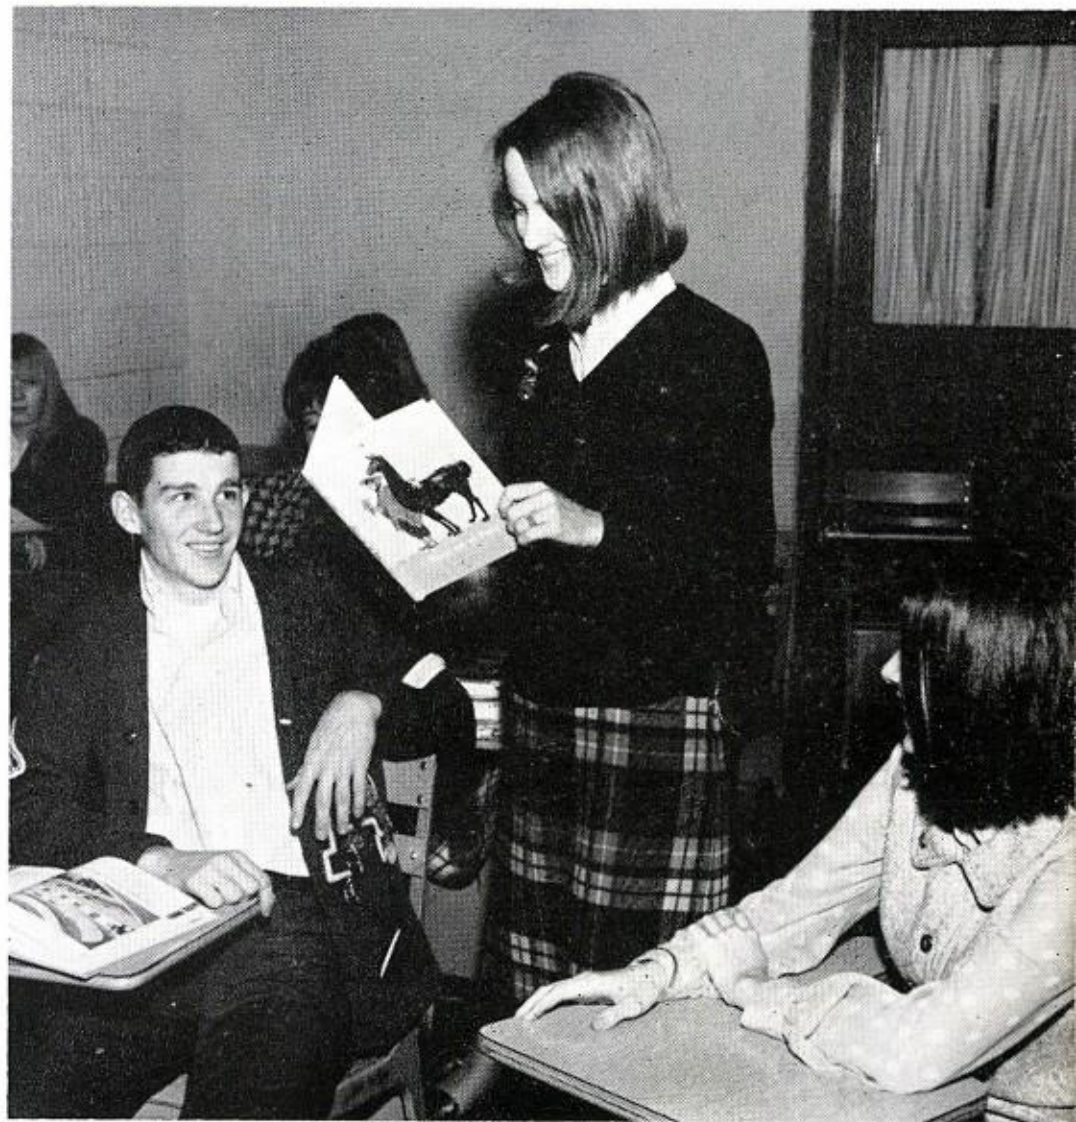

The outstanding students from each language were honored at Arlington's annual honor award assembly.

Dennis Draut points out China on a map as Sophomore Bob Kelley and Junior Cathy Coniglio look on during history.

This year Arlington High School offered several courses in the field of Social Science, headed by Mr. Schaller. Many of these courses are important to students because of the great need for more understanding between people.

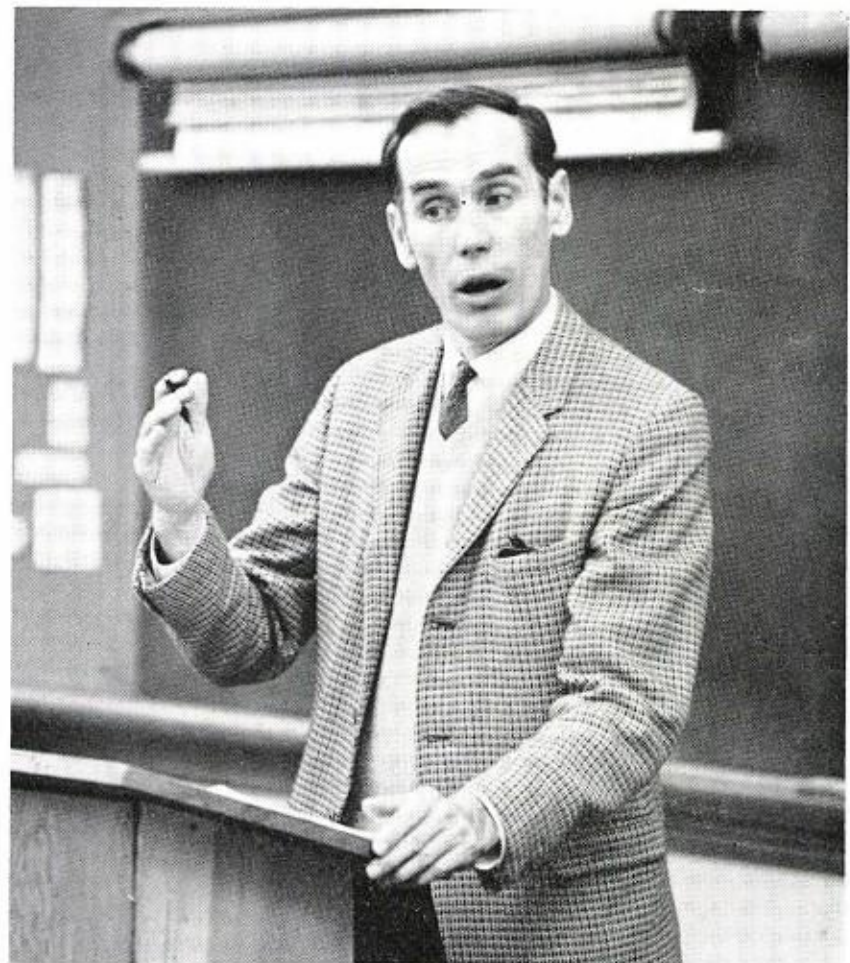

A new course was offered this year at Arlington. American Problems was offered to sophomores, juniors, and seniors for one semester. It was concerned with the aspects of government, plus a study of social and economical problems. World geography and world history were again offered as part of the curriculum. They were concerned with the physical features, history, and politics of the world. Latin American History, Current History, Far Eastern History, and Economics were offered primarily to upperclassmen for only one semester. The first three, Latin American History, Current History, and Far Eastern History, dealt with the history of Latin America, the impact of world events in the United States, and the history of the Far East. Economics is a study of business, labor, international trade, and farm problems. Sociology, offered only to seniors for either one semester or a full year, combines psychology and sociology.

Once again the Social Science Department has proved to be an important factor in the academic achievement of students at Arlington High School.

Potential Scientists Studying Their Fields

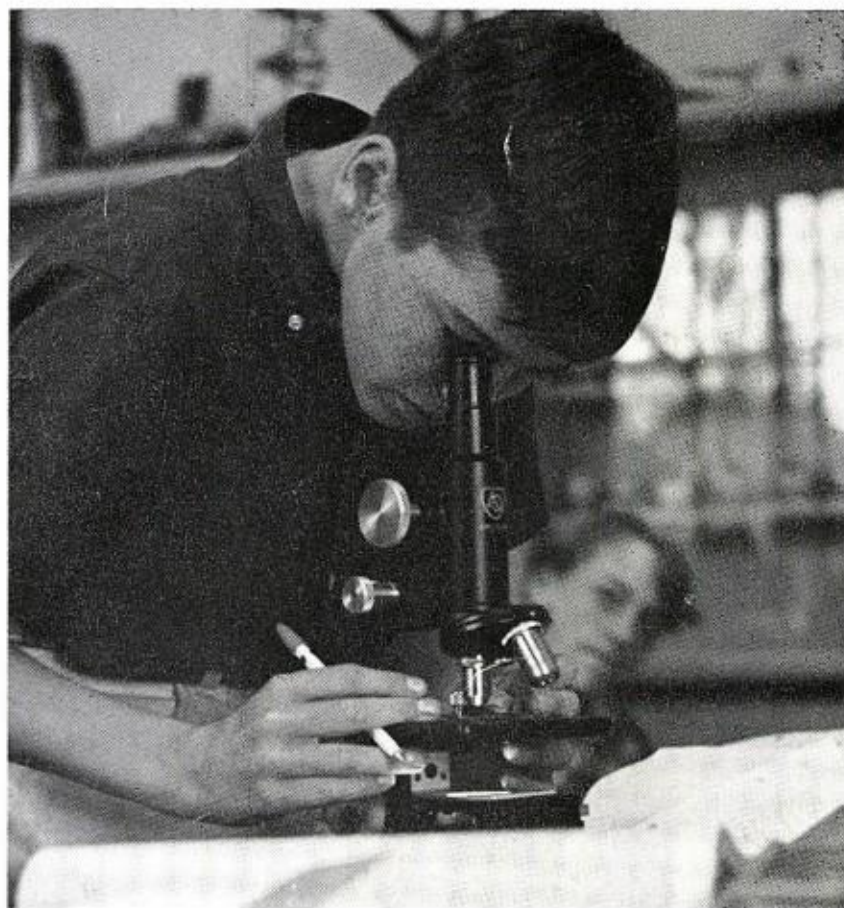

Dissecting worms, making hydrogen, learning to solve formulas, and going to the Indiana Sand Dunes were all part of the Science classes this year at Arlington. Students were taught about light, forces, reactions, and life. For each year that passes, this already enormous field broadens. Therefore, many more things have to be covered in the sundry courses that are offered.

Altogether, there are only seven courses which are open to Arlington students. Biology, which is usually taken by all freshmen, is one course which is required for graduation. Students learn about the family of plants, and the family of animals, and about the human body. The other required one is Physical Science, which is taken by second year students. Physical Science is the combination of one semester of chemistry and another of physics. These are taught in this way to give to the student a basic concept of both subjects. The only other science course which is open to the sophomores is Earth Science. This course is taught only for one semester. Chemistry is open to all the upperclassmen. This course increases the student's knowledge of chemicals and their reactions. Physics, Zoology, and Botany, the three remaining courses, are for seniors only. In this past year the honors physics classes delved more deeply into the study of electronics than in previous years. Students receive a close look at the science world and the fields related to science.

Juniors Dick Press and Pat Rezner use various means to measure the amounts needed for a chemical experiment.

Fourth Row: Mr. James Ulrich, B.S., M.A., Math Club.

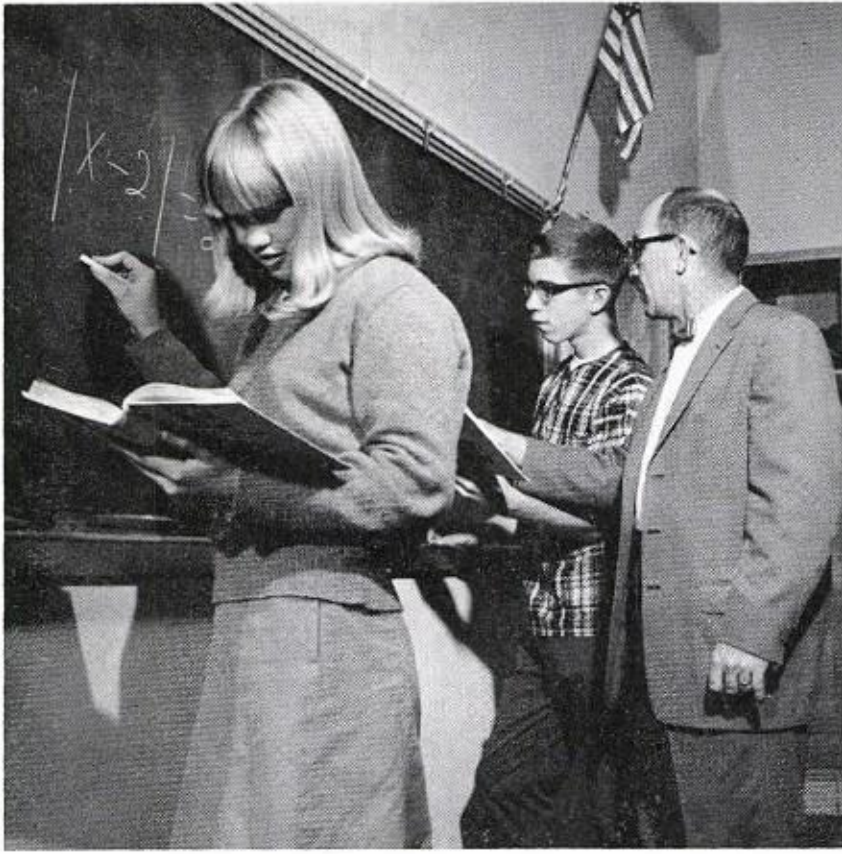

Senior math students Mike Grant and Carol Gordon work together to find the answer to one of the math problems.

Mathematics has become one important field in the world today. For this reason, many students include one phase of mathematics on their schedule of classes. Freshmen are able to take Algebra I or Math I. By one's sophomore year, Geometry is offered. Upperclassmen take Advanced Algebra, Trigonometry, and Advanced Math I and II.

Mr. James Ulrich was head of the Mathematics Department. He was also elected to serve as the president of the Illinois Council of Mathematics. Mr. Ulrich has written two books. One deals with high school geometry. Essential Mathematics has its second edition off the presses now.

Several new mathematics teachers have come to be a part of the faculty at Arlington. Many of last year's teachers have stayed again this year. These faculty members strived to give students a basic understanding of mathematic principles and how to apply them. The mathematics courses were taken by our students with the college preparatory program.

Typing Makes Arlington Students Efficient

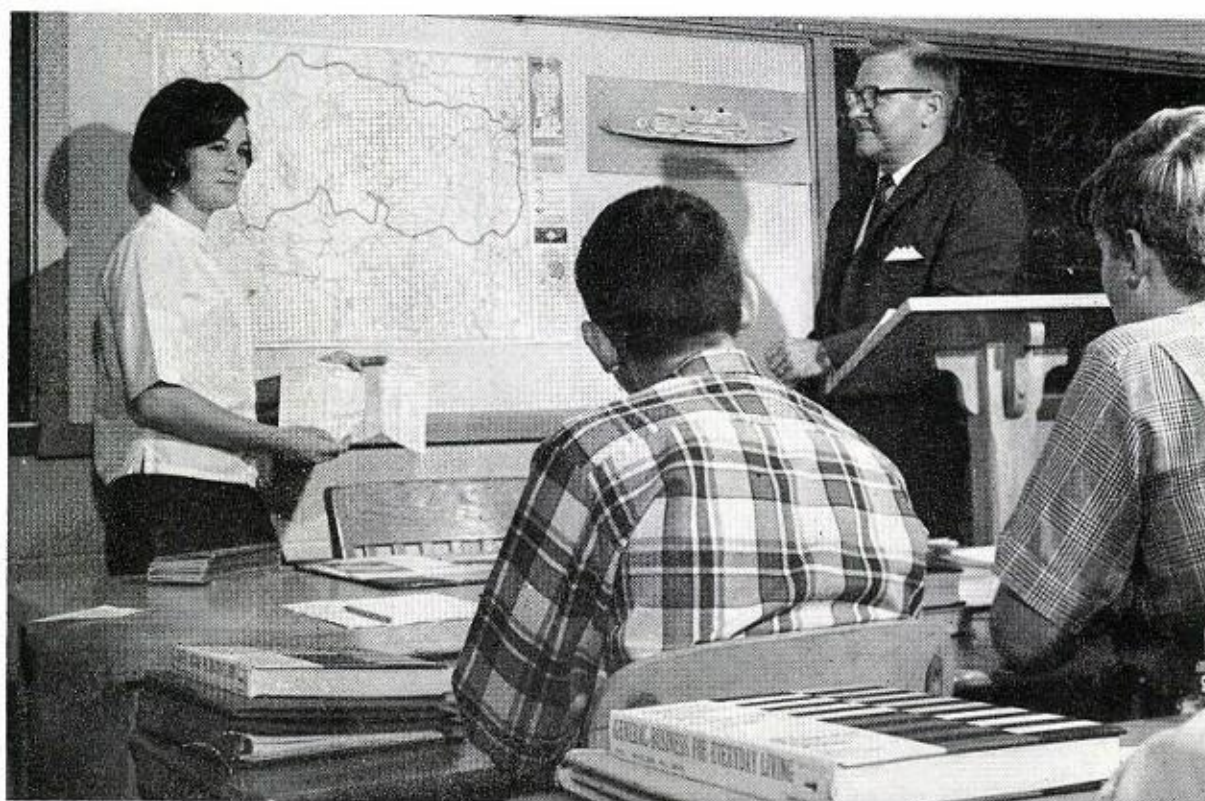

Classes in Business Education were on the schedules of many students this past school year. This department, headed by Mrs. Faulkner, offered ten different courses for those who were preparing for college or future jobs. These classes also helped students with their school work at Arlington.

Typing, Notehand-typing, and Shorthand-typing were offered to those who desired an aid in their school work. It was also given to college bound students, as well as those who would be seeking jobs after they finished their high school education.

The remaining seven courses in the curriculum of Business Education were mainly for the students who were planning to get a job after they had completed high school. General Business had offered the student a general background of the business world. Courses in Business English and Business Law helped the students in understanding the various languages of different business. Two other courses were Bookkeeping and Dictation-transcription. They taught the students some of the fundamentals each would need to know before going into a business. Consumer Problems and Office Practice classes helped students get acquainted with business operation.

While Allison Reed watches, Mr. Betterman attempts to expound the complex language of a schedule.

Distributive Education is a vocational education program. In this program a student learns in the classroom and learns a trade at the same time. Distributive Education, as the title indicates, is concerned with the field of distribution of goods or services. The major objective of this organization is to prepare high school students vocationally for retail jobs. This program is under the direction of Mr. Seibel.

Learning one particular skilled occupation is the main objective of the Diversified Occupations program. It allows high school students to train for a job while earning a diploma. The Diversified Occupations program is under the supervision of Mr. Stahnke.

In both Distributive Education and Diversified Occupations students attend school for half a day and are employed the other half. They must take two academic subjects and physical science in school. The academic and vocational training prepare students to move ahead towards their chosen professions.

Drawing and painting make up only a small part of the art courses offered at Arlington. Under the supervision of Mr. Michaelis and Mr. Monnett, the art department provides four individual courses.

Basic concepts and principles along with design and drawing are emphasized in Art I. This course is open to any interested student. Art II delves more deeply into the technical skills of graphics, ceramics, jewelry making, drawing, painting, and design. After taking Art I and II, students may enroll in a combination Art II-IV course. In this class students choose their own workshop in sculpture, painting, drawing, ceramics, or jewel design and spend one semester on this particular subject. General Art is a concentrated course covering four years of ideas in one half semester.

Juniors and seniors are offered a class in Fine Arts Appreciation taught by Mr. Pugsley. Fine Arts Appreciation is a survey of music and art covering the early Egyptian to contemporary periods.

Besides studying in the classroom, art students benefit from excursions to the Art Institute or to the Field Museum. Also, extra time is saved each year for the competition in the Scholastic Art Show.

Harmony, pitch, and tone quality are among the several goals which members of Arlington's music department worked for this year. Under the direction of Mr. White, Mr. Pugsley, and Mr. Schmoyer many of these goals were reached.

As head of Arlington's instrumental department Mr. Schmoyer was director of Arlington's band and orchestra. Under his teaching members of these organizations developed proper playing techniques and learned to play as a well-conducted group.

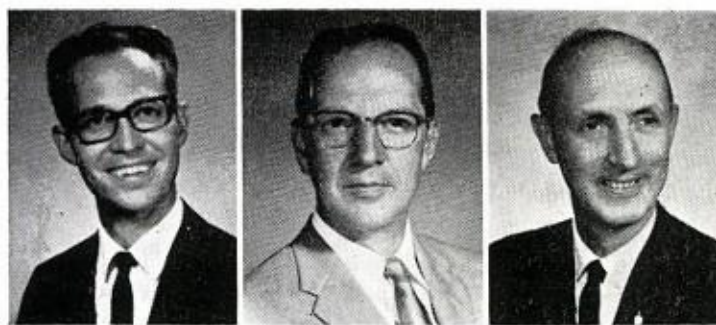

This year the instrumental department provided much entertainment and music for the students of Arlington. In addition to performing during half-time, the band performed in several of Arlington's concerts with the orchestra. In addition, the orchestra accompanied this year's operetta.

Under the direction of Mr. Pugsley and Mr. White members of the vocal department worked hard in preparation for concerts, festivals and contests. Much of their work and talent was exhibited in the State Music Contest and the operetta.

Freshman and sophomore members of the vocal department were trained in preparation for Senior Choir in Mixed Chorus, Girl's Glee, and Freshman Chorus. Mr. White taught Senior Choir and the freshmen while Mr. Pugsley taught the sophomores.

To be one of the members of Senior Choir is an honor and the members find out that even the honored must practice.

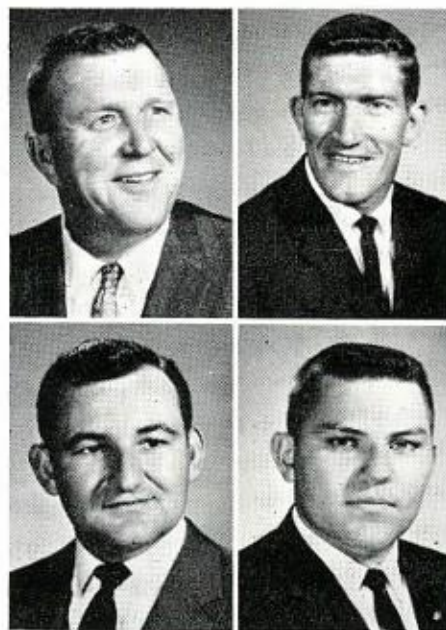

Skills Are Developed In Industrial Arts

Working in his metals class, sophomore Rick Glaser takes a measurement with calipers while using a metal lathe.

The Industrial Arts Department, like any of the other departments, teaches students through lectures, textbooks, and tests. However, the Industrial Arts courses place major emphasis on the application of textbook knowledge through individual projects. A project demonstrates the extent to which a student correctly understands an idea that has been presented.

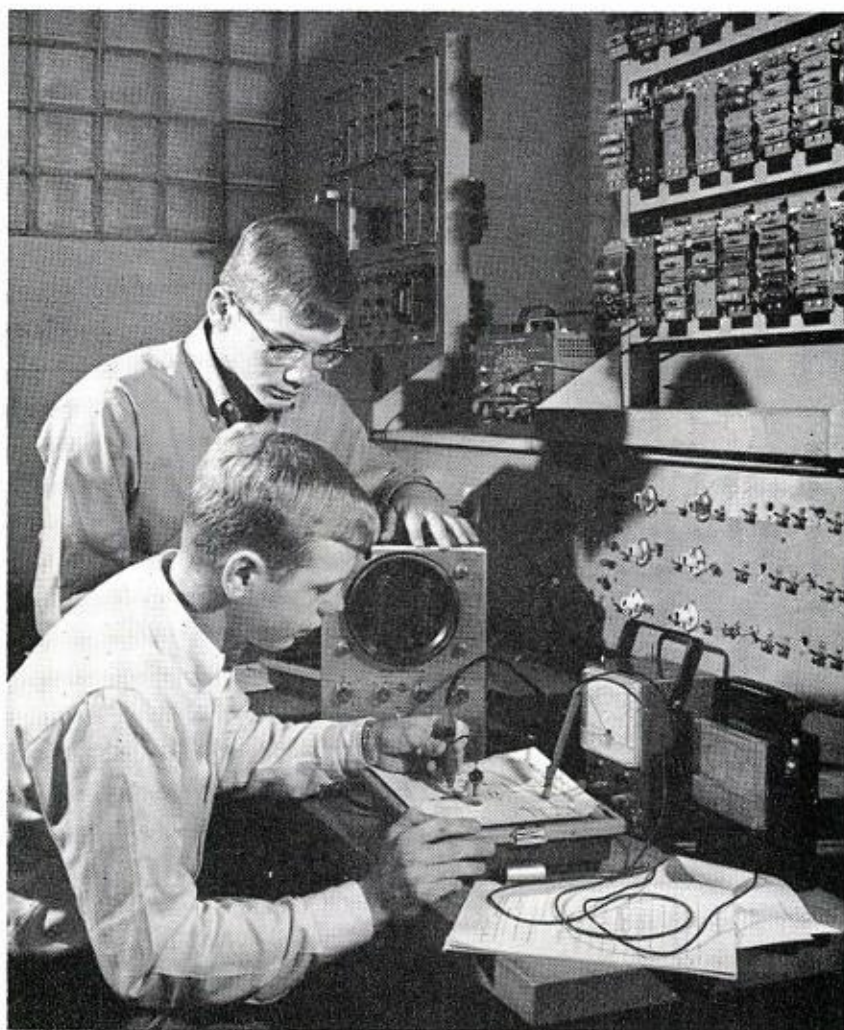

Several objectives pertain to all five areas of Industrial Arts. They are as follows: to teach the student skills in one or more of the five areas, to teach an understanding of the operation of specialized equipment, to encourage an appreciation of quality workmanship, and to acquaint the student with various industries. Drafting, electricity, electronics, metals, and woods are the areas which comprise Industrial Arts. Teachers are Mr. Larson, Mr. Post, Mr. Myers, and Mr. Thompson. Drafting involves the principals of architecture and the use of drawing tools. Electricity and electronics courses teach such topics as the fundamentals of computers. Students in woods and metals work with tools and their hands.

Needles and Pans

The home-making courses at Arlington, headed by Mrs. Kane and Mrs. Barker, offer a wide selection of classes pertaining to almost every part of home life. The classes range from Creative Cookery to Dress-making and from Child Care to Interior Decorating.

Freshmen and sophomores are offered composite courses, Homemaking I and II. These two courses include food selection and preparation, understanding children, laundering and fabric selection to suit the particular individual.

Juniors and seniors who are going further in Home Economics may choose specialized courses in Clothing, Dressmaking, Tailoring, Creative Cookery, Child Care, and Interior Decorating.

The homemaking course also includes demonstrations, talks, and field trips. Representatives from various corporations speak to the many classes. Other speakers include some interior decorators, dress designers, and experts in Creative Cookery. Field trips are taken to such places as the Dixon State Hospital, the National Designing Center, the Art Institute, the Merchandise Mart, the Quaker Oats Company, and fruit manufacturing plants. All of these things make taking these courses worthwhile and fun.

Spirit And Style

"Ready, and . . . one, two, three, four, . . ." Another Arlington physical education class was under way. Throughout the gym groans of exhaustion were audible as students stretched, pulled, and strained. During the warmer months passers-by could watch red-and-white-clad boys and navy-bloomered girls huff and puff around Arlington's endless track.

Three new teachers were added to the Physical Education Department this past year. They are Mrs. Lebiecki, Mrs. Lagerlof, and Miss Thompson. Mrs. Lagerlof sponsors the drill team, and Mrs. Lebiecki teaches dance and Orchestras.

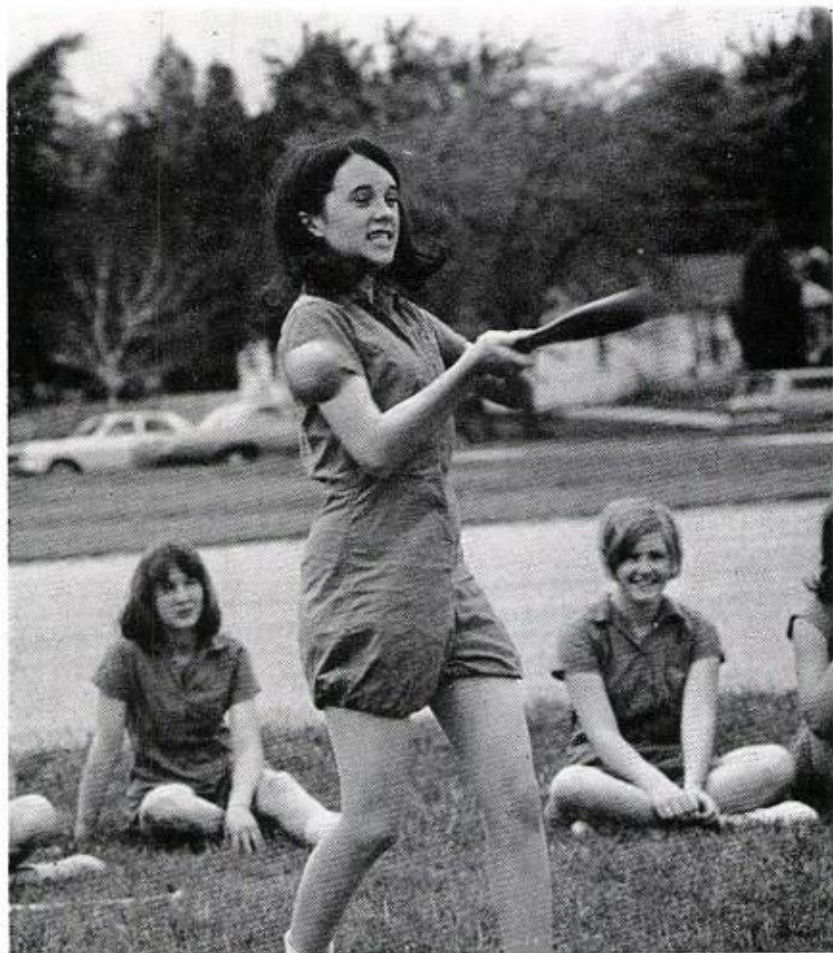

As in past years, there was a wide variety of specialized girls' gym classes. Orchestras and the drill team had classes of their own. Some girls took dance instead of a regular gym class, and many juniors and seniors were enrolled in Leader's class taught by Mrs. Wessels.

Boys who were in a sport were able to take study hall instead of a physical education class, and there was a special gymnastics class offered for freshmen.

Students who were not able to participate in active sports were enrolled in a limited physical education class.

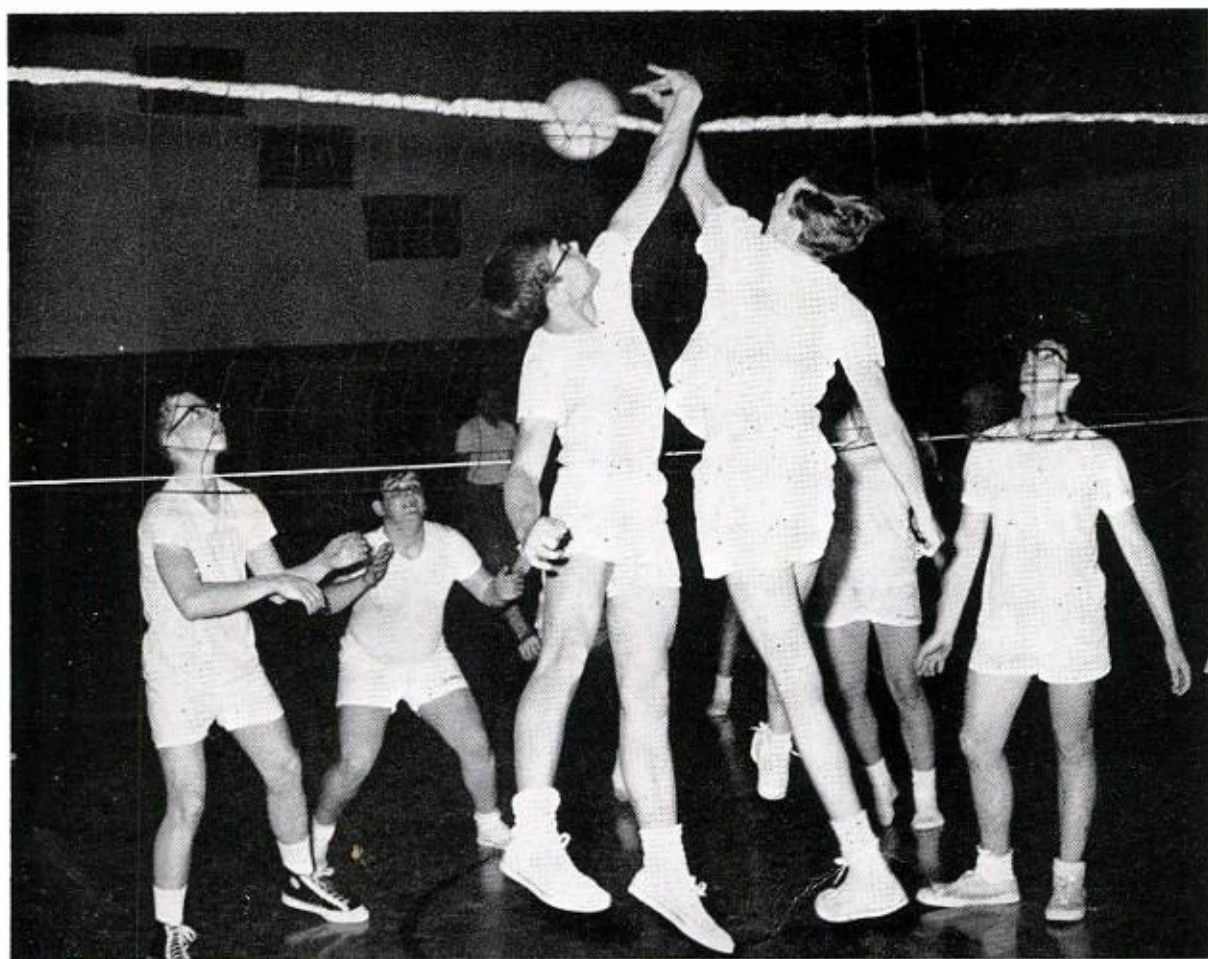

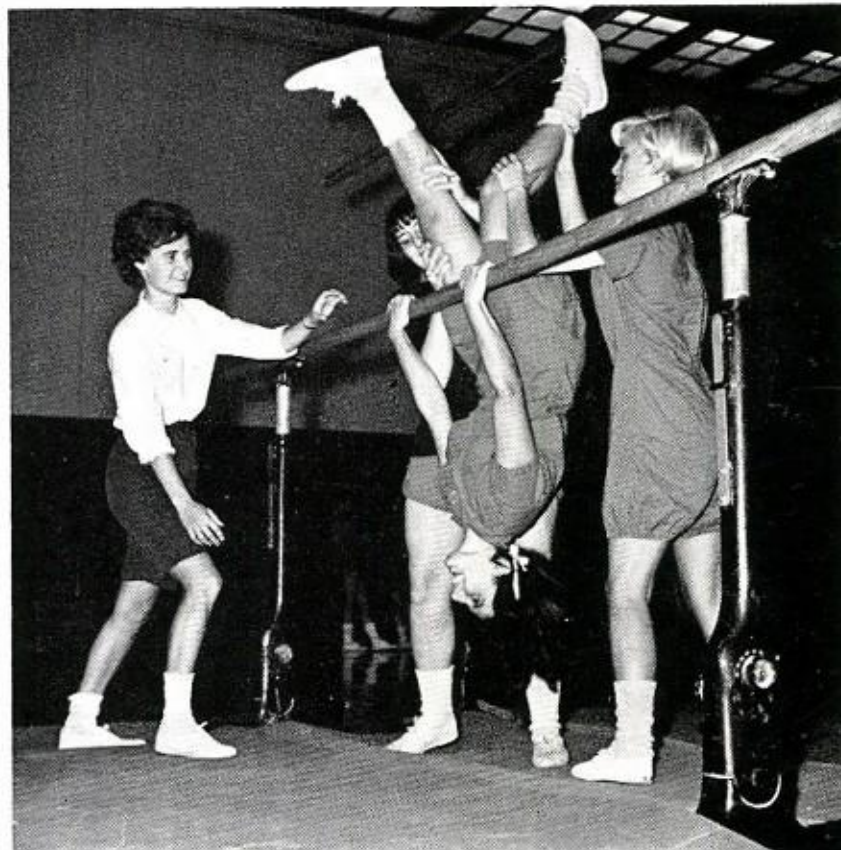

Mr. Russell Attis was the head of Arlington's Physical Education Department during this year.

Many of the services which enable the school to run efficiently are performed by the secretarial staff and the special service departments. These services benefit both students and teachers.

The secretarial staff is composed of seventeen clerks, headed by Mrs. Gast. Six of the secretaries work as department clerks while the others work in offices. Among other jobs the department clerks mimeograph tests while the office clerks attend to such jobs as attendance and registration.

One of the constantly used departments is the library. Through the work of Mrs. Guilfoil, the head librarian, and her assistants the library is able to provide records, language tapes, books on nearly all topics, and magazines.

Mrs. Dowling, speech correctionist at Arlington, helps students to overcome speech defects.

Under the direction of Mr. Kavanaugh the Audio Visual department provides lighting for plays, tape recorders for teachers, and films for classes.

Mrs. Ford, the school nurse, is responsible for the health of Arlington's students. In addition to repairing sprained fingers and injured knees, she files student's medical reports and their accident claims.

Custodians Beautify While Cooks Nourish

The work of the custodians is always a necessity in maintaining the appearance of the school building. The custodial staff, headed by Mr. Leark, is responsible for the care of Arlington's grounds as well as building maintenance. This force of seventeen people is depended upon by the entire student body, faculty, and administration to keep the building in order and to see that such facilities as heat and light are operating properly. The performance of these tasks and others insures the function of the entire building. In 1966, as always, the custodians did their jobs well, thereby gaining our grateful recognition.

The kitchen staff is a group that every student in the school appreciates. About 12 o'clock each day, the students may not be thinking about Mrs. Woolsoncroft, food supervisor, Mrs. Pardee, food production manager, or Mrs. Hill, cafeteria manager, or any of the other ladies, but they begin looking forward to the delicious lunches they prepare. Twenty-one cooks are the mainstay of the cafeteria. Through their efforts, a choice of fine meals, which contain one-third of a student's daily nutritional requirements, is carefully prepared each day by able hands.

Activities

For many Arlington students a great part of their education takes place outside the classroom. The activities of Arlington offer the student many opportunities to investigate a subject more thoroughly, pursue a hobby, participate in a governing body, and simply have a good time. Some activities do not change throughout the year, but others change with the seasons.

Arlington's '66 Homecoming Court is all smiles as its members look forward to the students' decisions of king and queen.

Arlington Honors Homecoming Traditions

Announcing of this year's 1966 Homecoming court started our homecoming week at Arlington High School. The nominees for queen were Sue Chodera, Joy Hruska, Lynn Larson, Pat Smith, and Jan Weber. The nominees for king were Lowell Christy, John Erickson, Mike Grant, Larry Malcolmson, and Kim Markshausen:

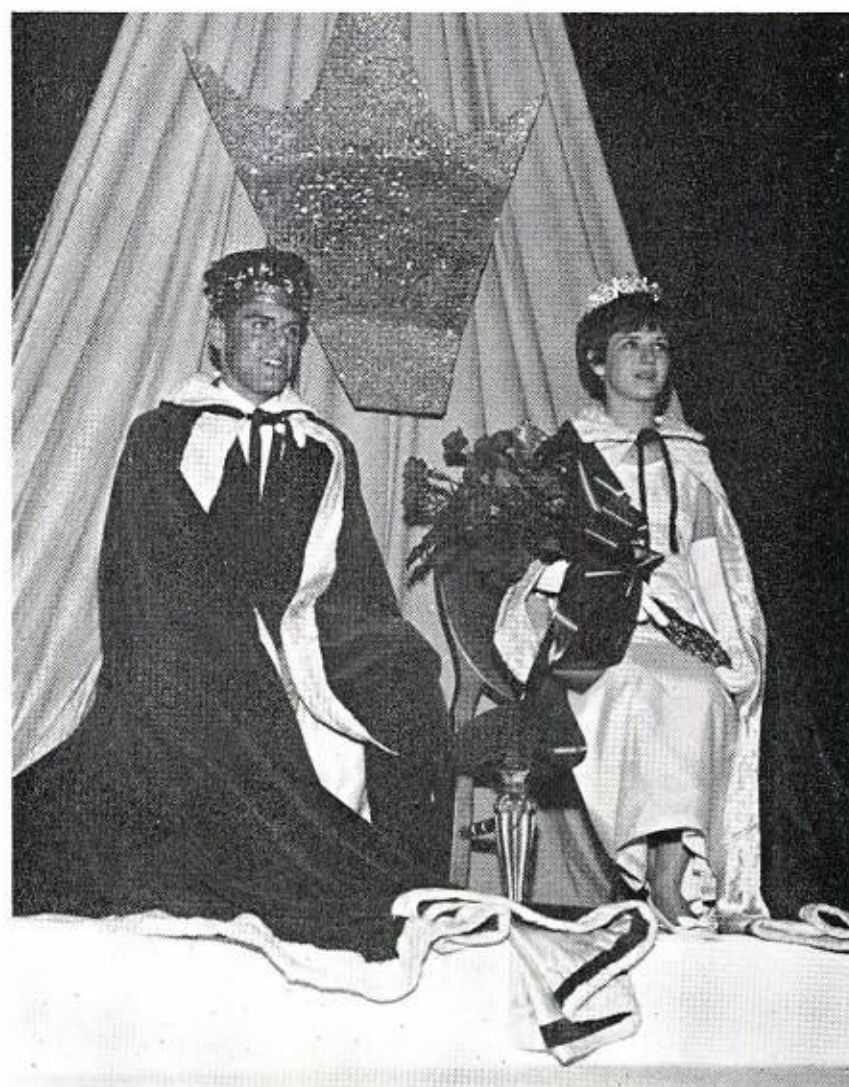

The days that followed were filled with finding hayracks for everyone's treasured floats, squeezing in a little homework between decorating these floats, and for some — sheer exhaustion.

Originality played a big part in the contest for the best float. After many long hours of work a great big grandfather clock was chosen as the winner. It represented the race against time.

On Friday the decision of Homecoming queen and king had to be made. As it happened Sue Chodera and Larry Malcolmson were chosen as Homecoming queen and king to reign over the victorious and memorable weekend.

The Cardinal spirit soared high as everyone awaited the game against Conant on Friday night. In the final outcome our Cards were on top with a victory over the Conant gridsters.

Homecoming '66 at Arlington was more than just a game or a dance but it remains a week packed with excitement, work, and fun. It is the hope of everyone that this tradition will not be lost.

Dance All Night

Many couples walk around and talk to friends while enjoying themselves at the Christmas Ball, titled "Deep in December."

Finale Of 1967: "Prelude To A Dream"

Juniors Sally Faner, Janie Oestman, Carolyn Dobbins, Dick Witcher, and Mark Warns make plans for this year's prom.

After a successful Kick-Off Game, a school mixer featuring "The Fifth Quartet Rock," was sponsored by the junior class as the first social event. Two weeks later, after another football victory, Sue Chodera and Larry Malcolmson led festivities at the Homecoming Dance, "Autumn Nocturne." "A" Club spent hours collecting "unusual" decorations, such as the parachute creating the false ceiling.

On one wintry night "Deep in December," girls dressed in their formals, as it was the eve of the Christmas Ball. Queen Ellertson and her subjects found themselves in a wonderland transformed by Christmas trees, holly, and snowmen. Tradition was broken as refreshments were served in the foyer.

Finally, spring found its way through the thirty inch snow banks to bring the long awaited moment. It was June 9, and the Senior Prom, "Prelude to a Dream" was to begin. Slowly couples drifted into Riverwoods Country Club to dance the hours away. As the music of Johnny Marlow's band filled the ballroom, an evening of anticipation began to unfold. At 1:30 A.M., trains left for a fun-filled holiday at George Williams College on Lake Geneva. As in a dream the prom must end but the memory remains.

Improvement Is Goal Of Student Council

The '66-'67 Student Council has two main goals for the school year. The first was to encourage Council to become involved within itself, by keeping all of the members active. The second aim was to promote the best interests of those at Arlington, in hopes other students would become more active. Under the leadership of Student Council officers John Erickson, president; Low Christy, vice-president; Lynn Larson, corresponding secretary; Susie Chodera, recording secretary; Jim Sergey, the chief of A.H.S. traffic court; Terry Malone, treasurer; and Harry Tennant, parliamentarian; the forty-four Council representatives met once a week.

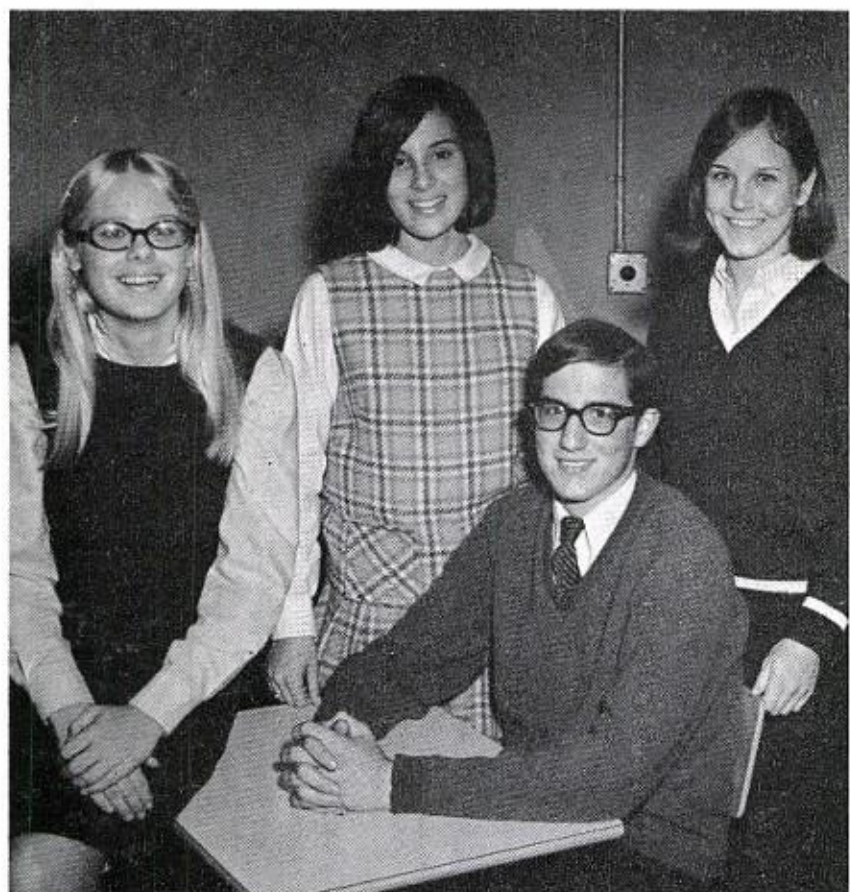

Student Council has additional accomplishments to its credit this year. By encouraging class participation, Arlington was able to collect more than four thousand pounds of food for the poor. Ideas, such as various workshops for better understanding of Council functions, evaluation sheets, and a Card Mascot, were instigated for the first time. A.H.S. was also able to, with the aid of the Peace Corps, build a school by raising a thousand dollars by way of various projects. Among other responsibilities taken on by Council were Homecoming ceremonies, Talent Show, Fun Nights, and our correspondence with our own adopted Vietnamese girl, Pung Thai Loan.

Foreign exchange student Cathy Kaloudi attempts to expound vigorously on problems posed in her Sociology class.

Under the supervision of counselor Miss Craig and student activity director Mr. Patberg, the Arlington chapter of the American Field Service sponsored two exchange students this year. They were seniors Catherine Kaloudi from Athens, Greece; and Michael Paelmo from Paete, Laguna, Philippines.

Student council's chapter of A. F. S., headed by senior Bill Elsner, along with an adult committee, sponsored various projects to raise money to send Arlington students abroad. Although run by student council, A. F. S. is open to any interested student.

The main purpose of Traffic Court is to stress driving safety to students. It is Traffic Court that makes the safety rules stated in the student constitution.

The court chief justice was senior Jim Sergey and the representatives were senior Carol Spomer, junior Mark Warns, sophomore Sue Carr, and freshman Sue Ramassy. This year the court sent one of these representatives to the Springfield Traffic Safety Convention to discuss old and new rules of the state.

This year's play season began with the fall play Ah Wilderness! The three-act comedy, written by Nobel Prize winner Eugene O'Neil, is partially based on the playwright's teen years. The story is about family life set in a Connecticut town in 1906. The Miller family was headed by Harry Tennant as Nat and Nancy Harris as his wife Essie. Included in the family were Steve Clark and Robert Ekstrand as the sons and Susan LeBeau as the daughter. The show was Directed by Douglas K. Murphy with the technical work done by James Nicholls. Pat Gates was assistant to the director.

The winter season was brightened by the showing of Moss Hart's Light Up The Sky. The author's experiences in the professional theatre constructed the background for the comedy about life in the theater. Moss Mart was also the co-author of previous Arlington productions of The Man Who Came To Dinner and Once In A Lifetime. The locale of the play is Boston and business at hand is the pre-Broadway try-out of a new play. The play was directed by Lyovonne Trad with scenery by James Nicholls. Leads were shared by Monica Hruby, Dave Ewart, James Cronin, and Pat Smith.

The Devil's Disciple was presented in the spring.

An enthusiastic member of make-up crew carefully puts the face on an anxious sailor participating in the show.

A Show Of Talent

"A Deck of Cards Oar Shuffle Aboard," this year's talent show, was made possible through the direction of Mr. Johnson, Miss Anderson, and student director Pat Smith.

Over two hundred students participated in the show. Members of the cast were selected during try-outs, which were held nearly one month before the performance. The main characters were the ship's captain, played by Lowell Christy, and the recreation director, played by Shelley Hamilton.

The show was based on an ocean voyage from London to New York on the "S. S. Arlington." The show opened on the day of departure at a London port. After several numbers, including "Get Me to the Boat on Time" and "Anchors Aweigh," the boat departed and the voyage began. The voyage was filled with song and dance numbers, such as "I Feel Seasick" and the "Good Ship Lollipop," which demonstrated the students' talents. One of the acts depicted an underwater scene.

The voyage was ended with the singing of "Give Me Your Tired, Your Poor" before the Statue of Liberty. The entire cast joined in singing the finale.

"This performance is going to be great the first time, right?" commands Mr. Johnson as he encourages members.

Students Recognized By Honorary Clubs

Of all the organizations at Arlington, membership in National Honor Society is probably the most difficult to attain. Students were chosen by their teachers and sponsor on the basis of character, scholarship, leadership, and service to the school only after they had met these basic requirements: sophomores, a 4.5 grade average; juniors, a 4.25 grade average; and seniors, a 4.0 grade average. The members include 10% of the senior class, 5% of the junior class, and 2.5% of the sophomores, who are probationary members.

Under its sponsor, Miss Cobb, this organization again served its school. This year's officers, chosen by the members last spring, are Jim Sergey, president; Diane Smith, vice-president; Jane Ulrich, secretary; and Sharon Dillon, treasurer.

During the year the National Honor Society sold pennants, printed and sold "Dialers," held basketball concessions, and sponsored coke dances in order to finance the initiation of new members in the spring. Parents, teachers, and friends were invited to this impressive ceremony at which pins and membership certificates are distributed. N.H.S. also participated in the tutoring service offered at Arlington and contributed to A.F.S. Besides holding their regular monthly meetings, they also took a field trip to entertain the two A.H. foreign exchange students.

National Thespian Society is an organization whose membership consists of students who have worked at least one hundred hours on a dramatic production. The group is sponsored by Mr. Murphy, Arlington's dramatic teacher. It is Mr. Murphy's hope that membership in the club will promote even greater enthusiasm in all areas of dramatics.

National Forensics League is comprised of those students who participate in debate or individual speech activities. The club is headed by an executive board including Steve Clark, president; Doug Uselding, vice-president; and Cindy Johnson and Pat Smith, secretaries. Their sponsor is Mr. Wagner, who is assisted by Miss Trad, Mrs. Lebin, and Mr. Havens. Among the activities of the group is the annual publication of the National Forensics League calendar.

Quill and Scroll is an international honorary society set up to recognize high school journalists. The members have assumed responsibilities for two years and have made outstanding contributions to their respective staffs, either the Cardinal or the Heights. The journalists are recommended for a membership by the sponsor of the publication. The candidates must then be approved by the executive secretary of Quill and Scroll before they are accepted. In order to qualify for membership a Student must be either a junior or a senior in the upper third of his class scholastically. Quill and Scroll is headed by the publication supervisors.

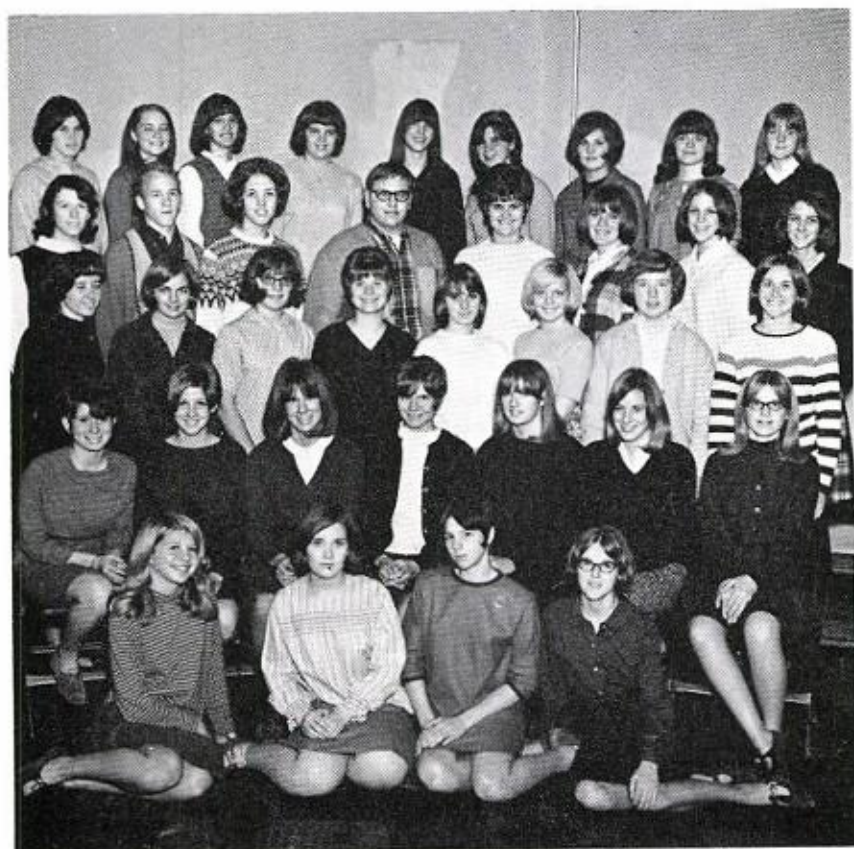

The only time when French Club, Latin Club, Spanish Club, German Club, and Russian Club are united is at the Pan Language Council. Each club is represented by specially chosen members. Their main purpose is to plan the annual Pan Language Banquet, each being in charge of either the food, the publicity, the decorations, or the entertainment. The publicity chairman's job is to send out the invitations to the special guests and to the foreign exchange students of Arlington and of the other schools. Chairman of the decoration committee has the job of forming the decorations around the theme selected for the Banquet. The meal for the Banquet is served in a buffet style with the main dish supplied by the Council with cooperation from the cafeteria. Other dishes are supplied by the guests. The milk, punch, and coffee are also supplied by the cafeteria. Miss Anderson is in charge this year.

Accent With Notes

"The purpose of Spanish Club is to promote a deeper interest in the language," said one member of the organization. With this goal in mind, Barb Callahan, Camille Oldenburg, and Bonnie Barnett guided the club through its various activities. At Christmas, AHS Spanish Club helped give a party for the children of the Spanish migrant workers in the area. Two extensive trips were planned during the year, a spring trip to Mexico, and one to Spain in the summer. During the school term, the club kept itself busy with field trips, watching slides, and attending a Spanish Fiesta.

One of the more highly distinguished groups at Arlington High is known as Tri-M, or by its full title, Modern Music Masters. The national organization gives special recognition to the student who actively participates and shows marked achievement in both fields of music, that of vocal, or that of instrumental. Membership is achieved by maintaining a "B" average in music, along with at least a "C" academic grade point, by auditioning, and by receiving recommendations from different teachers. Tri-M's projects include their annual Pot Luck Dinner that is held for all of the district schools, recitals, Christmas caroling, and athletic concessions.

French and German are Basic Languages

For better understanding of the French language, the French club viewed interesting and informative French films and acted out various French plays this year. Guest speakers discussed their recent trips to France and showed slides illustrating the French ways of life. The Pan-Language Banquet was a very important event. The club members planned and presented a skit at the annual banquet.

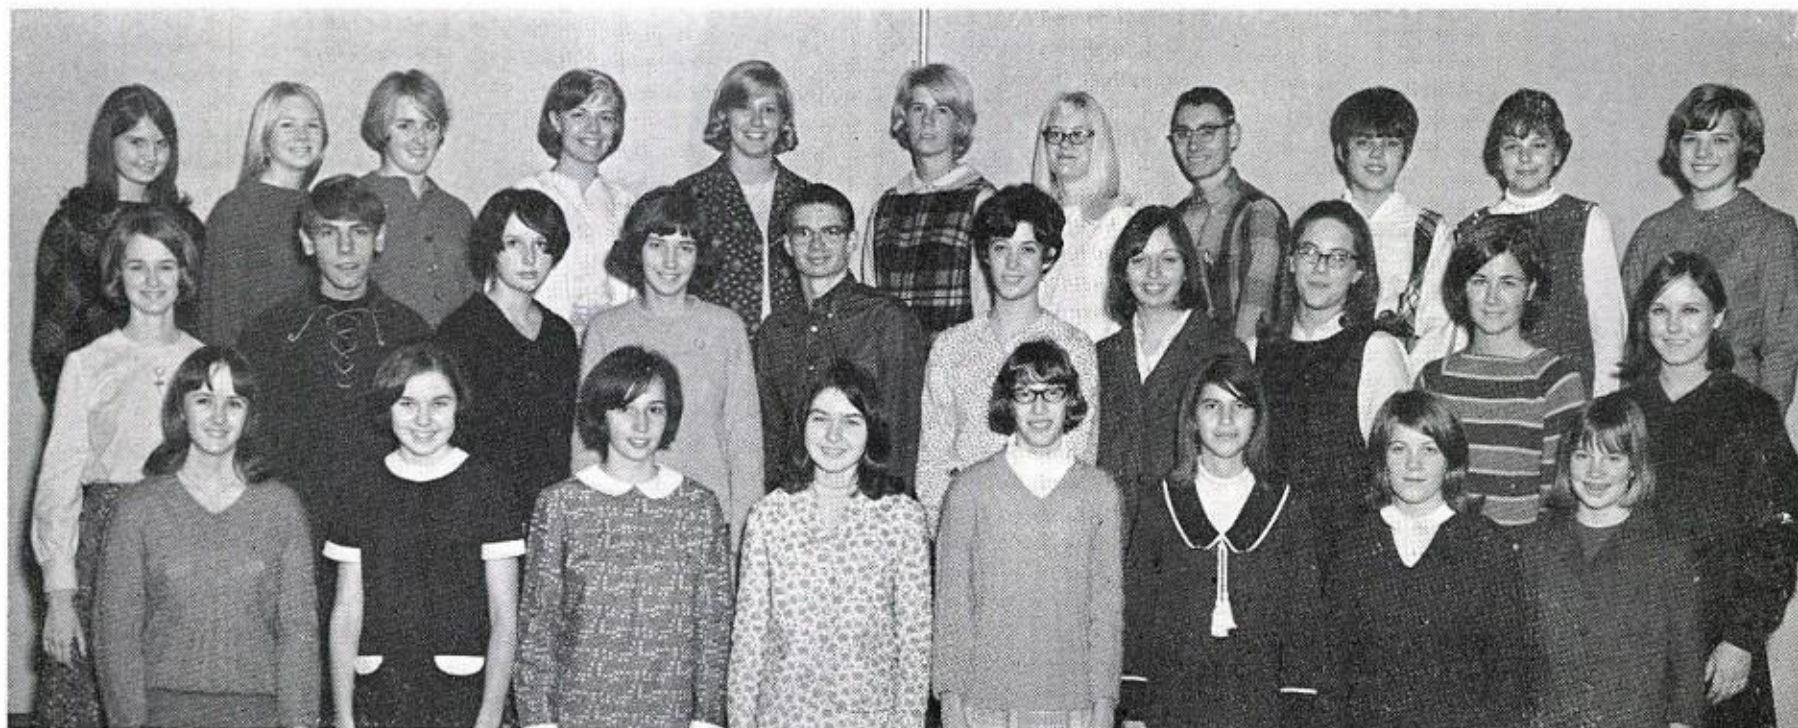

Club officers were Pat Rogers, president; Sharon Dillon, vice-president; Debbie Zonsius, secretary; and Linda Heffernan, treasurer. The two sponsors of the club were Mrs. Foreman and Mr. Nielsen.

German Club took part in many activities during the past year. The club took a field trip to see two German films in Chicago to start off the year's activities and continued seeing films and slides at their meetings. A time consuming project for German club was planning a skit for this year's Pan-Language Banquet. The singing of German Christmas carols was the highlight of the club's Christmas party. The club's leaders were Lyn Stevens, president; Susan Woods, vice-president; and Susan Wellhausen, secretary-treasurer. The German teacher who sponsored German club this year and assisted in the planning of the organization's activities was Mr. Gellert.

Two of our foreign language clubs, Russian Club and Latin Club participated in many activities this year. Both clubs offered membership to any student who was interested in learning more about the past, present, and future of Russia and ancient Rome. In the spring they both participated in the annual Pan-Language banquet.

Russian Club, sponsored by Mr. Babris and headed by Fred Korndorf president; Bob Stigger vice-president; and secretary Ellen Olsen, visited other high schools in District 214 in order to observe their classes and respective clubs. They also attended Russian concerts, operas, and movies in Chicago.

Latin Club, headed by Mr. Siewert, took part in several trips this year. On October 8th, several members of the club went to Ottawa to attend the annual Illinois State Junior Classical League Convention. Carol Spomer, president of the club, served as second president of Classical League for 1966. The other officers of the club are Judy Mandolini, secretary; and Mary Fisher, treasurer. Once again they participated in the annual Latin District Playday. This winter they also attended a play in Chicago. Latin Club has also considered sending a student and a sponsor to the National Junior Classical League Convention which is being held in Arizona during the early part of August. For this year's Pan-Language banquet Latin Club presented a skit which was written by Mr. Siewert. Members put on a fashion show.

Staff Works On Toward Greater Heights

Senior Barb Broscovak, this year's Heights editor, and her assistant Pam Johnson, consult over clipboard and dummy.

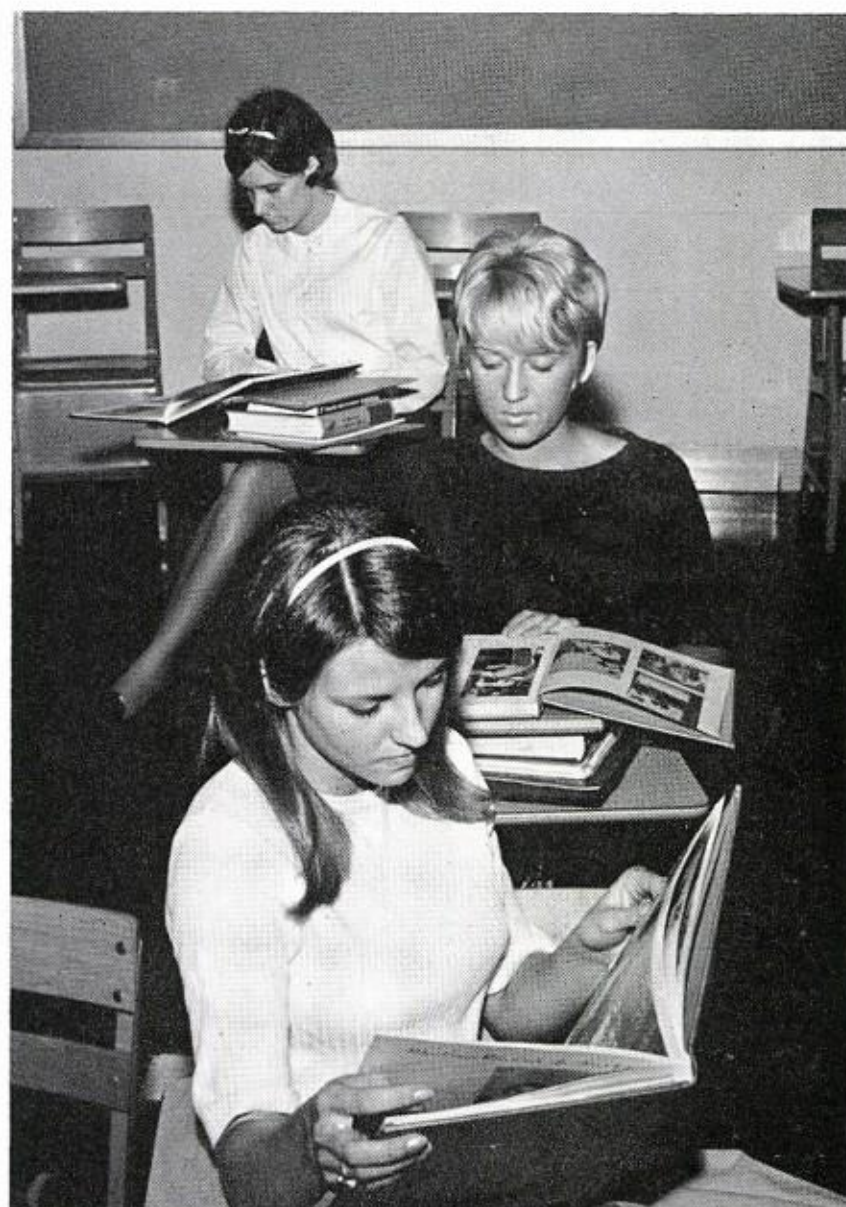

Sports Editor John Ploetz takes a well-deserved break from the fast and furious pace he sets for the hard-working staff.

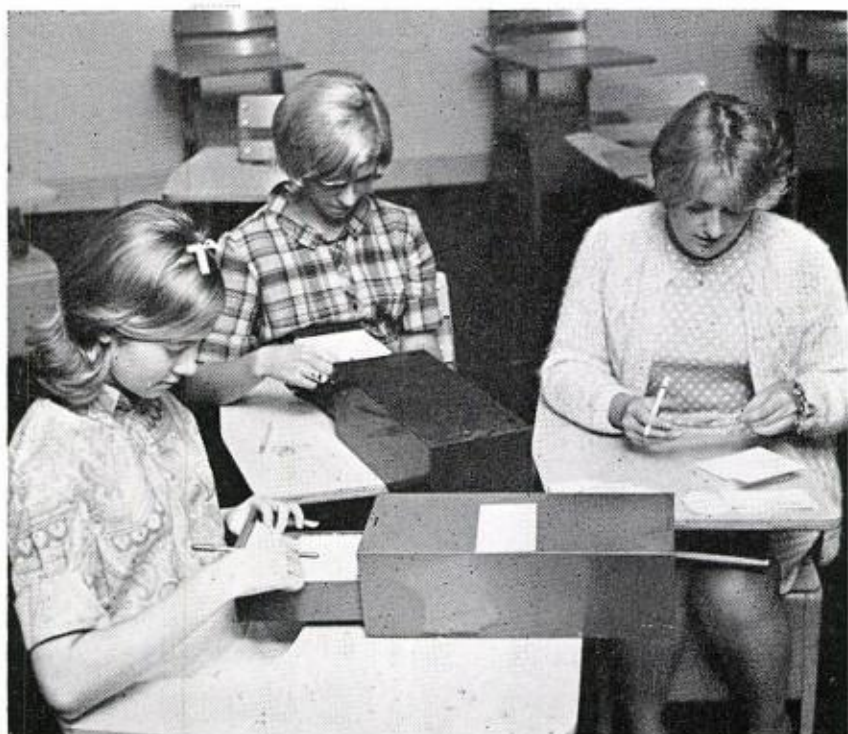

Memories of '66-'67

Each year it is the responsibility of the Heights staff to organize into one book the year's events. This is a permanent record for Arlington's students and teachers and the whole community. During sixth hour every day in room 108, there was a scene of busy work and hectic activity. There was not an idle moment for the staff or for their capable advisor, Mr. Robert Boesel. Barb Broscovak served as Editor-in-Chief, Pam Johnson as Assistant Editor, plus John Ploetz as Sports Editor. During the summer they met to begin the work on the yearbook. First the "dummy" had to be set up. Decisions, then, had to be made as to how the pictures and copies would be arranged on the pages and when certain club pictures and incidentals would be taken.

The remaining positions on the staff were filled by the twenty-three sophomores, juniors, and seniors. These students, who were chosen after applying in the spring, did the many assignments handed out to them by the three different editors. Much had to be done. Idents had to be taken, indexing and alphabetizing had to be done, copies, captions, and heads had to be written and counted, and errands had to be run. Their job also included prompting sales to the students, faculty, and different nearby offices. Spending innumerable hours after school and during the sixth hour, the staff worked industriously throughout the year to meet its deadlines.

Working at the never-ceasing task, Gail Hollinger, Penny Meyers and Judy Mandolini attempt to alphabetize the index.

Looking up from next month's lay-out, Cardinal Editor-in-Chief John Simmons plans Arlington's next school newspaper.

CARDINAL EDITORS

Seated: Linda Heffernan, Nancy Bukowski, Rob Kurrasch, Shelley Hamilton, Bunny Berngen. Standing: Larry Malcolmson, Terry Malone, Maureen Shaughnessy.

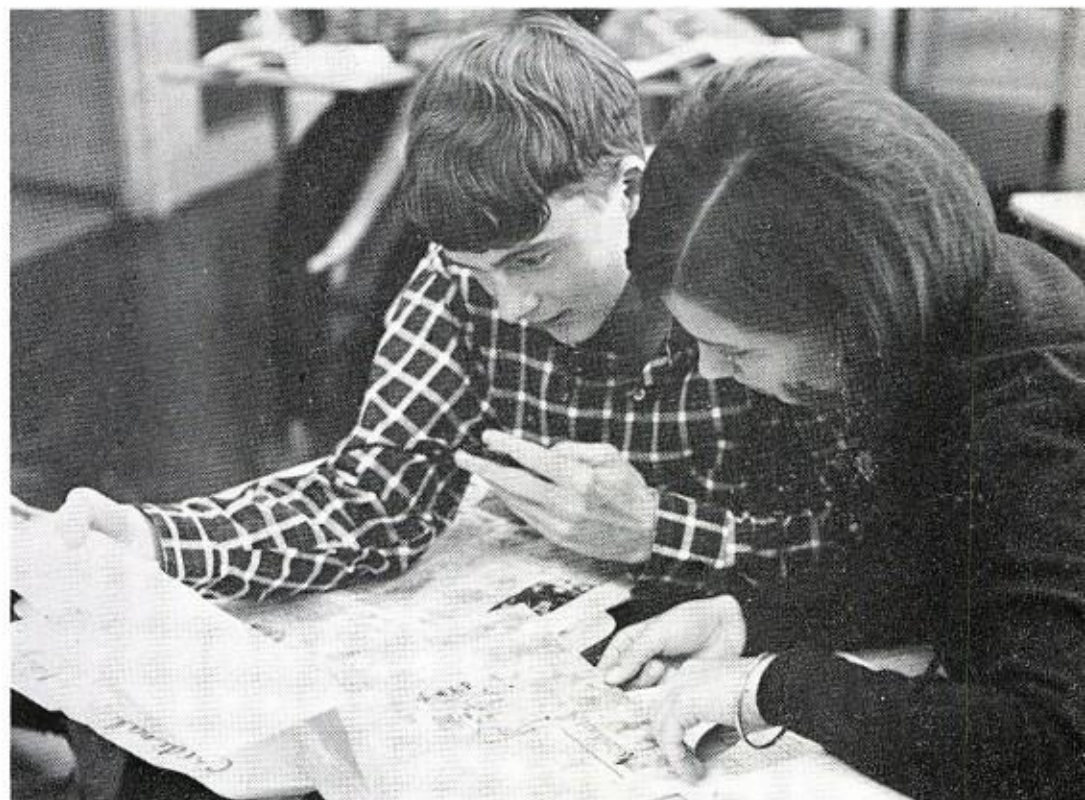

Working Hard To Prepare A New Edition

The Cardinal, Arlington High School's newspaper, was put out every other week throughout the school year by its efficient staff. This year the Cardinal staff was divided somewhat differently as far as the journalism classes were concerned. Of all the students in Journalism one were reporters and those in Journalism two were editors. The Cardinal staff seemed to be quite happy with the way their new system functioned this year.

The sponsor of this year's Cardinal is Mrs. Suzanne Tedell and she is backed up by twelve conscientious staff members. The editor-in-chief is John Simmons, co-feature editors are Rob Kurrasch and Terry Malone, news editor is Linda Heffernan, and the assistant news editor is Nancy Bukowski. The energetic sports editor is Larry Malcolmson and his assistant is Ron Horcher. Larry Dale is responsible for the photography and Maureen Shaughnessy is the cartoonist. The business manager is Bunny Bergen and the circulation manager is Kim Markshausen. Last, but not least, is Shelley Hamilton who is the highlights co-ordinator for this year's Cardinal staff.

This year's Cardinal's success was not only due to its efficient and energetic staff, but the Cardinal also added the Roto Scholastic to each issue this year.

Thomas Walsh and Terry O'Rourke concentrate on the next edition of the Cardinal, striving to meet their deadlines.

Mike Grant and Mike Peck, two reporters for the Cardinal talk over the ingredients of a feature for the coming edition.

Students from all four classes participated in Individual Speech Events, coached by Miss Kazmar and Mr. Havens. Members worked at self-governed paces to achieve their goals in particular areas of speech. Each student attending a tournament participated in his chosen category: serious or comedy play reading, oratorical declamation, radio speaking, poetry or prose reading, original monologue, and extemporaneous speaking, original oration, and after-dinner speaking. Members won N.F.L. points and gained recognition for Arlington by placing second in the district contest at Waukegan. From this six students advanced to the sectional contest. Junior Glenn Mitchell advanced to the state finals in his speciality—original oration.

Library assistants were an integral part of the Library staff. They contributed their services by taking charge of the main desk and the magazine room. Checking out books, collecting fines, and assisting inquiring students were some of the duties that they performed. They gained experience in working with people as well as a useful knowledge of the library's layout. These dedicated assistants waived a study to be able to serve the faculty and their fellow schoolmates. Their capable assistance freed the busy librarians from the supervisory tasks and enabled them to partake in specialized activities.

Resolved: The foreign aid program of the United States should be limited to nonmilitary assistance. This year the Arlington debate team participated in over thirty tournaments. The first major contest was the District 214 tournament. Sixteen schools from the state were present, with Arlington being victorious. We then returned to Northern Illinois University to try to keep the title won last year. Arlington entered the Sectional debate tournament, which determined those entering state competition, and the District tournament, which also determined who was eligible to enter the nationals. Arlington, debated in Illinois, Wisconsin, and Indiana.

This year we have had the largest debate team in the school's history. The varsity debaters were coached by Mr. Wagner. The sub-varsity team was coached by Mrs. Lebin. Mr. Clark and Mrs. Lebin led beginning debaters. Secretaries Carol Herda, Linda Punch and Linda Uselding catalogued evidence and ran errands.

This year the varsity squad of Karen Richards, Lydia Wilson, Doug Uselding, Sandy Meinhardt and Pat Cox had an excellent background in the art of debate. The majority of the team attended debate classes at various colleges this past summer. Top awards were attained by each member attending the supplementary classes. Debate teams at Arlington had an excellent year for vigorous competition.

Interests Go From Saddles To Computers

Three of the various clubs that the Arlington students may join are Computer Club, Riding Club, and Sociology Club. These clubs usually meet at least once a month during the seventh hour.

Riding Club is a newly organized group that is sponsored by Mrs. Hinton. This club is open to all girls who are interested in riding whether they've had experience with horses or not. In the spring and the fall the members ride every week after school. During the winter the meetings are held once a month. Officers are elected in the spring of each year and serve the following year. Mary Jo Thelander is this year's president.

Computer Club is under the supervision of Mr. Gardner. At the monthly meetings computerism is the topic of discussion. Lecturers speak and movies are shown in order for the members to learn more about this fascinating field of science. This year's president is Tom Staadt.

Sociology Club is another organization that is offered to Arlington High's students. Its sponsor is Mr. Mueller and the president is Norm Lees. The meetings are usually held on the second Monday of every month. All the members take part in group discussions which deal with current social and racial problems. The club makes extensive use of the audio-visual aids which include tapes and films dealing with these subjects. Field trips to Old Town and Joliet were also some of the club's activities.

Arlington Volunteers Give Helping Hand

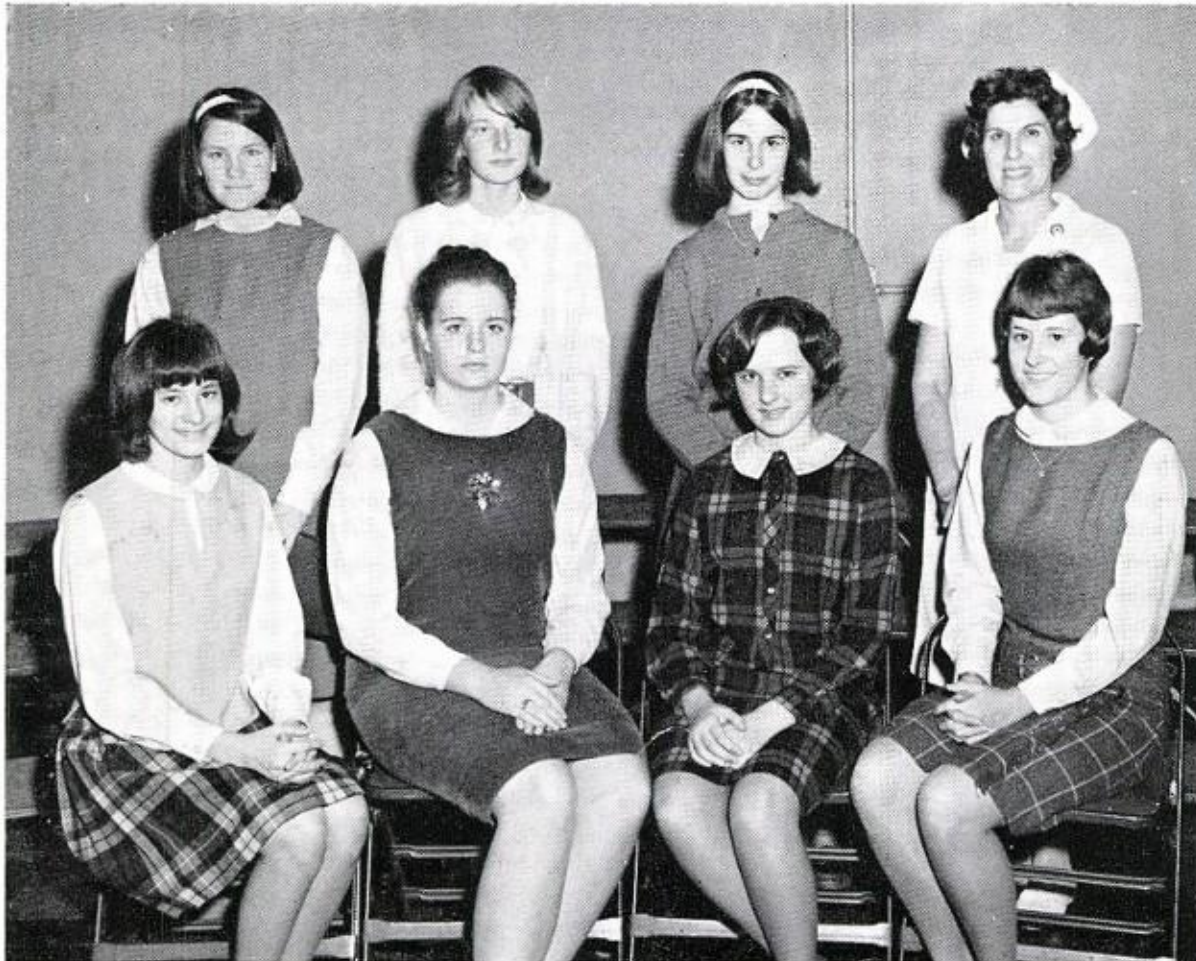

Teachers from the science department who need assistance can receive help from students called laboratory aides. These students give up their study halls to perform various duties for the chemistry, physical science, and biology teachers. The duties include making solutions and preparing apparatus. The lab aides also help the teachers by correcting papers and helping with class experiments. The lab aides serve the science teachers while learning about various science fields.

When our school nurse, Mrs. Ford, needs students to help her in the health office, she interviews students who have volunteered their study halls to become nurse's aides. Anyone who is interested in applying must have a grade average of C or above. The nurse's aides help to accomplish various jobs while they are in the health office; however, if necessary the aides may study. Some of the duties of the aides are signing in students who come to the office, filing health records, and learning about first aid. With the nurse's supervision the nurse's aides are allowed to give first aid care to minor injuries. The aides also assist with eye examinations. The nurse's aides often discuss health problems and nursing care with the nurse. Of the twelve nurse's aides who offered their services this year, half are very interested in a nursing career upon graduation.

Hobbies In Science

The Ham Radio Club this year has encountered itself in many projects. It had eight members and the President was Bob Kindler. Presiding as Vice-President was Bob Hill and the Trustee was Mark Keller. Through practice, the club members are expected to learn the Universal Code and the Morse Code. They are taught the basic fundamental techniques of radio transmitting and the responsibilities accompanying it. The Radio Club helps to promote the amateur radio operator into operating the radio as a hobby. The club has set its goal toward licensing each of the members and teaching different codes. Their call letters are WA9FOH and their sponsor for this year was Mr. Post.

Trying to develop theories and experiments with chemicals are the main characteristics of Chemistry Club. The club has helped to encourage more interest in experimentation with formulas. Interested students spent their time in the lab during eighth hour. Here they can experiment on their created formulas and develop many new theories. Chemistry Club not only helps prepare them for the future but also for schoolwork. Mr. Jones guided this year's members in their experiments in the chemistry labs.

BIOLOGY CLUB

Second Row: Nancy Epsky, Kathy Dolinajec, Sue Kast.

Astronomy, Geology, and Biology clubs carried out plans for various projects and field trips. These science clubs increased the knowledge of its members by offering extra opportunities other than those offered in science classes. The clubs were open to all interested students. Astronomy Club was sponsored by Mr. Pumphrey. Its president, vice-president and secretary-treasurer were Bonnie Marks, Sandy Meinhardt, and Tim Accardo respectively. Astronomy Club, having eleven members, built a large telescope for their club's use. The Club helped to promote interest in astronomy.

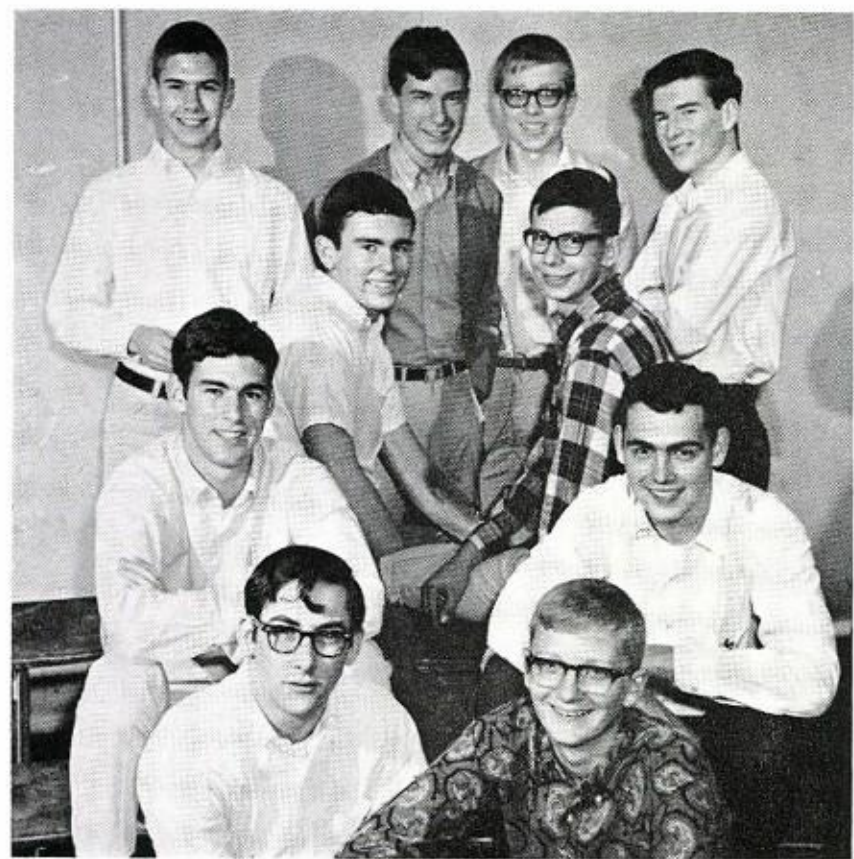

In its first year of existence at Arlington High School was Geology Club. The club was originally started by Beverly Seng, Steve Schafersman, and Steve Busch. The club's five members planned two field trips to help them study in their field of science. These two trips were to Palos Hills and Chicago's Academy of Science.

This year Biology Club had fifteen members. Mr. Schonta sponsored the club. President was Doug Theiman, vice-president was Gary Wheeler, and secretary-treasurer was Mary Callahan. The club planned two field trips to Argon National Laboratory and Dresden Nuclear Power Station. Members were asked to do at least one science project for the club.

SCHOOL STORE

Have you ever wondered, as you stop by the school store, who is in charge of this convenient service? Miss Faulkner of the business education department is the sponsor. Seven girls from the office practice class clerk in the store before and after school and at lunch time. Any profits that the school store makes are used to purchase equipment for the business education department.

The Audio-Visual Club is composed of students who give up their study time to serve the school. Included in their responsibilities are lunch time tapes and all tape recorders' tapes, movie projectors, movies, and record players used as teaching aids. Three girls serve as secretaries to the sponsor, Mr. Cavanaugh.

The Business Education club, sponsored by Mr. Betterman, meets twice a month to discover and discuss possible future careers in business. The club has a membership of twenty.

Another group of students who give up their study time to serve the school are the office guides in the counseling and attendance offices. They regulate traffic in the offices and distribute passes to students in study halls. Each volunteer is interviewed by a faculty member of the office involved and each must maintain a certain grade point average.

Time, Work, Skills

The members of the Stage Crew Club are the people who have worked behind the scenes to make this year's plays the successes they have been. Thanks to the Stage Crew Club, the dramatics department has literally lit up the sky in the Bristol Theatre this year. This year's club has functioned under the sponsorship of Mr. Nichols. Its members have contributed the labor on props and scenery for the fall, winter, and spring plays; also for the operetta. Many members of the club met as a special sixth hour class daily to work on stage properties. This class is known as Play Production.

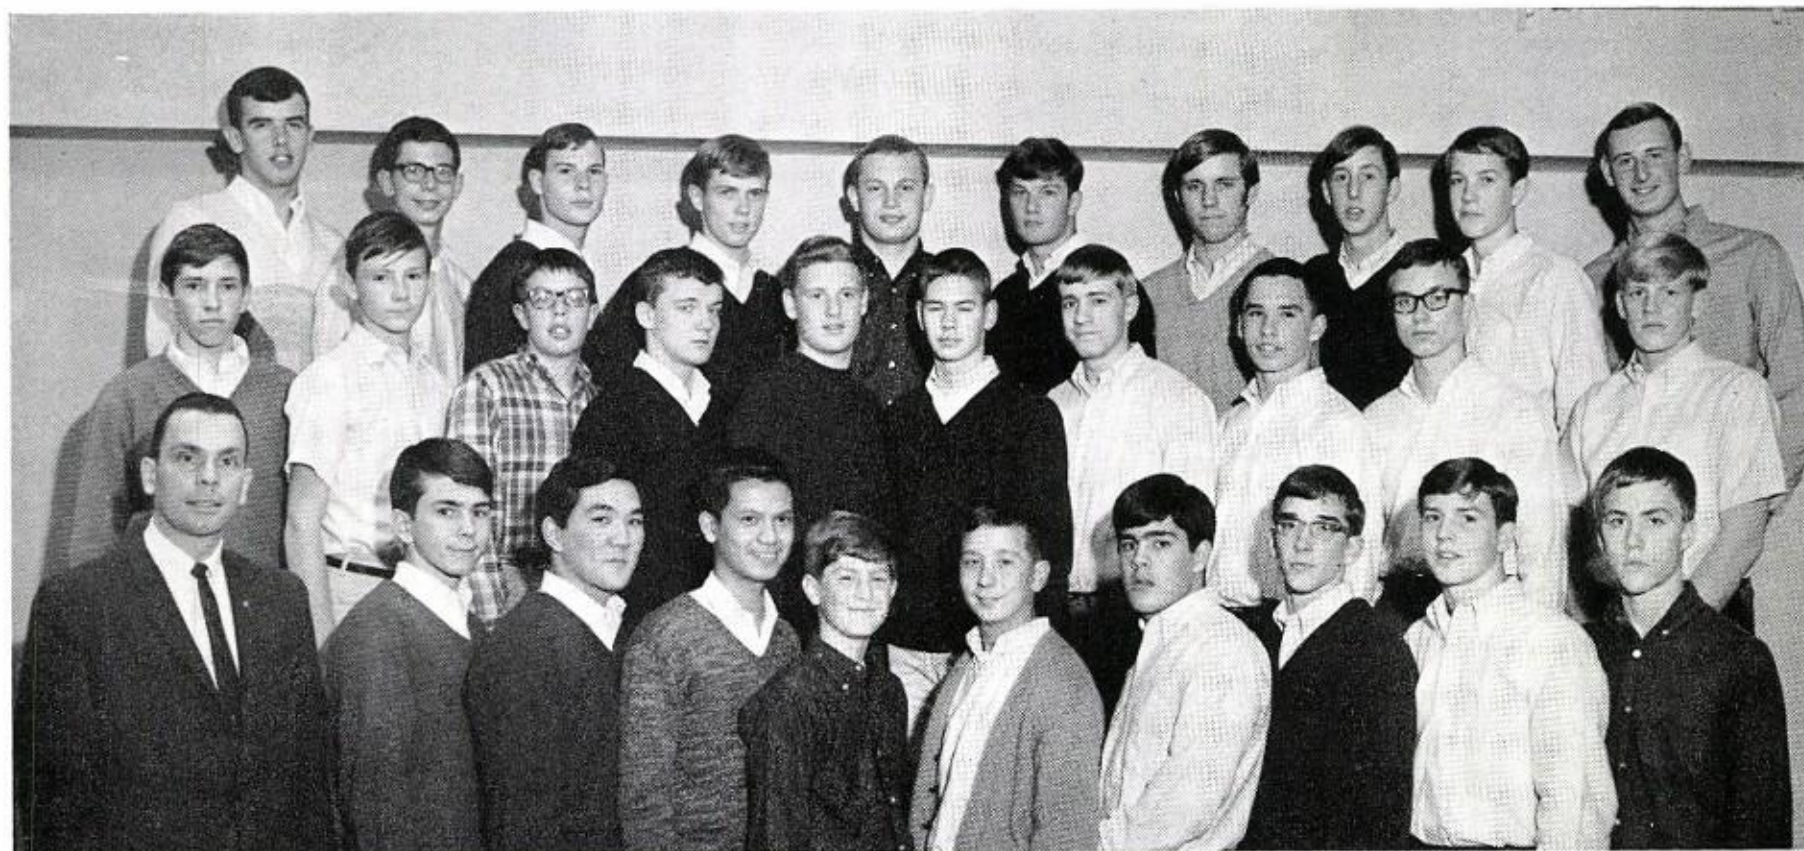

Rifle Club's round of activities started off with a bang this year. The club has gone shooting after school this year for practice. Also they have gone on trips to shoot at live game during the hunting season. The club's main objectives are to perfect the marksmanship of its members and to develop a knowledge of safety when using firearms. The sponsorship of Rifle Club changed hands this year. Volunteering for the job of sponsor was Mr. Bean. In early fall the club's twenty-five members elected their veteran marksman Roger Kendall as the president.

Triple "S", Arlington's service club for girls, attracted its many members from all four classes. It broadened its field of service this year by becoming a member of the American Red Cross. Participating students contributed their time and skills to such projects as the making of Christmas stockings for the Cook County Children's Hospital. Triple "S" members gained not recognition, but a very real sense of achievement from their tangible contributions to the community. Sponsors were Miss Ellingsen and Miss Roberts.

Key Club, Arlington's service club for boys, completed its fifth year of service to the community, the school, and the church. Members conducted campaigns to collect articles, such as books, needed by institutions in the surrounding area. To encourage school spirit, they promoted the games through colorful posters in the halls. Students contacted church sponsored homes for the aged to learn of needs which they could help to supply. Hoping to increase the effectiveness of Key Club, members attended district and state conventions to gather new ideas. Key Clubbers had a break from their varied activities at a semi-formal dance in January. Mr. Gibson and Mr. Eitemiller led this club's varied activities.

Create And Cure

This year, Arlington's Health Careers Club was very busy. Their purpose, "to acquaint students with various fields in the medical profession," was definitely fulfilled. Among their many field trips was a visit to a drug laboratory, a tour of the new St. Alexius Hospital in Elk Grove, and the singing of Christmas songs at Northwest Community Hospital. The members also saw several films on Nursing Educations. A speaker from the Chicago Career Academy gave an interesting talk on Medical Assistants.

Health Careers Club was led by Head Chairman, Christine Kelhi; Finance Chairman, Debbie Turner; Program Chairman, Nancy Nitch; and Kathy Stains, Recording Chairman. Nurse Ford was their advisor.

Members of Art Club again had a successful Black and White Show in the fall. In order to gain entry into the club, new members had to submit three works to this show. These pieces were then judged by advisors, Mr. Michaelis and Mr. Monnet. All winning works were put on display.

Club members also participated in field trips, concessions, and the printing of Christmas Cards. The club officers were Sue O'Dor and Sue Brooks. These girls helped plan many of the activities of the club.

Home Economics Careers Club helped promote a greater appreciation of the home economics field. This club tried to present interesting programs to its members. Various people have come to give a lecture or present a demonstration. A field trip was also part of its activities this year. Besides interesting programs, the members of the club have strived for these from which they could learn a lot. Regular meetings were held once a month.

Jo Anne Johnson was president; Susan Raymond, vice-president; Pamela Jacobs, secretary; and Jean Pagliai, treasurer. The sponsors were Mrs. Kane and Mrs. Barker.

Future Teachers of America was an extremely active organization this year. Field trips were just one phase of many projects. During October, five members of this club attended a Future Teacher Workshop at Glenbrook. The Circle Campus of the University of Illinois, located in Chicago, and the Chicago Teachers College were visited by the club on Veteran's Day. Two representatives were sent to a special education workshop at the campus of the University of Illinois in Champaign-Urbana.

Future Teachers met regularly once a month. The officers were Sandy Corfman, Pat Rogers and Pam Micek. These girls helped plan the activities.

Skiers Swoop, Glide, Soar, And Tumble

An open invitation to skiers and non-skiers to join ski club resulted in a membership of sixty students for the club. There were no requirements necessary for membership. The club's purpose was to provide a chance for skiing enthusiasts to get in more skiing and to give others a chance to learn skiing skills.

In early January thirty-two members of ski club journeyed to Iron Mountain, Michigan for two days of skiing at a ski resort. Non-experienced skiers as well as the experienced skiers enjoyed the trip to Iron Mountain and informal weekend excursions when weather permitted. These trips were planned as often as possible. The enthusiastic skiers packed up their gear on a moments notice whenever conditions were favorable. Area ski resorts were frequented by the club and provided convenient slopes for the club members to practice their sport.

At regularly scheduled meetings skiing movies were shown to illustrate numerous skills. Guest speakers visited the club and spoke to the members about ski resorts. President of the club was Sara Reynolds and vice-president was Diane Christiansen. Mr. Gardner enthusiastically served as sponsor of Arlington's ski club for the third consecutive year.

PHILOSOPHY CLUB

Care for a stimulating game of Chess or a deep discussion of philosophy? Chances are that you don't spend much time on either of these mind teasers. That is, unless you are a member of Chess Club or Philosophy Club.

Through participation in the activities of these organizations, members are given a chance to develop methods of thought, meditation, reasoning, and strategy while having fun. They learn that thought is a product of habit and how to apply their conjured ideas to different situations. Philosophy club, under the direction of Mr. Lindner, discussed their ideas not only in light of Socratic and Platonic theories but also modern day reflections and situations. Chess club members apply the methods of strategy and thought that they develop to the maneuvering of the game pieces as they attempt to outsmart their opponents in this individualistic and competitive game.

Harmonettes And Revelairs Harmonize

Under the direction of Mr. White, the Freshman Girls' Chorus was, once again, one of Arlington's largest music groups. Any freshman girl could become a member. They gave performances at many of the school assemblies and concerts. The chorus was a fine preparation for the higher music groups at Arlington. Besides singing various songs, the girls learned some of the theory of music, which is so very necessary for any musician.

The Freshman Boys' Chorus, while not as large in size, showed great potential. Wearing Arlington's red blazers, these boys performed many times throughout the year. Like the freshman girls, they learned many of the rules and techniques of music. Mr. Pugsley, their director, has done a fine job with the boys.

Many a person has enjoyed the soft sounds of the Harmonettes this year. They have performed at ladies luncheons, recitals, the D.A.R. Illinois Convention, the Teacher-Parent Congress, the talent show and many other affairs. Sponsored by Mr. White, the group consists of five seniors and eight juniors, each a talent in his own right.

Chosen on the basis of poise, personality, and of competent musical ability, the Revelairs have become a well established name at Arlington. These ten boys were under the direction of Mr. Boyd White.

Senior Choir consisted of eighty juniors and seniors, who were conducted by Mr. Boyd White. The group was featured at school concerts and assemblies, and participated in the District 214 Festival. Senior Choir performed for the State Classical League at the Edgewater Beach Hotel and, also, sent a delegate to the all-state chorus.

Mixed Chorus was composed of sophomores desiring to gain musical experience. Besides singing in concerts, assemblies, and the District 214 Festival, Mixed Chorus helped the music department organize and sell tickets for its concerts.

Girls' Glee Club included sophomore, junior, and senior girls. The group sang at concerts and participated in the District 214 Festival this year.

Choraliers was a very select group with three voices singing each of the four voice parts. The group performed for Homecoming Coronation, the Talent Show, concerts and assemblies. Choraliers vocalized several madrigal pieces during the past school year.

The Instrumental Music Department at Arlington is lead by the conductor, Mr. Schmoyer. The instrumental department consists of Concert A Band, Concert B Band, German Band, and Orchestra. The students in the department practice daily for their performances.

Concert A and B Band perform at school concerts during the year. Concert A B and marches and plays at football games here at Arlington. Interested members of Concert A Band play at pep assemblies and home basketball games. Concert A Band plays in parades also.

German Band is a popular group which entertains at various school activities. This band also plays at churches and hospitals. Members of the German Band wear German folk costumes.

The Orchestra at Arlington performs at school concerts and festivals. Orchestra students also display their musical ability at assemblies during Thanksgiving and Christmas. Music for the school operetta is furnished by the Orchestra each year. This is an important performance for the members of the Orchestra.

The Instrumental Music Department is responsible for the entertaining of many people again this year. With the help of Mr. Schmoyer members of the Instrumental Department work to perfect talent.

ATHLETICS

Many hours of hard work after school, on weekends, and during vacations by many dedicated people were required to produce the memorable teams and winning records which Arlington fans saw this year. Almost all teams had exceptional seasons during a year which saw Arlington's long overdue emergence as a major-sport power. A year to be long remembered.

Best Finish Since 1938 For Our Gridders

Arlington's All-Conference senior halfback Steve Conley sprints to tackle the rugged Glenbrook South opponent.

Charging through the Conant line, senior fullback Mick Wadzita struggles to complete those last coveted yards.

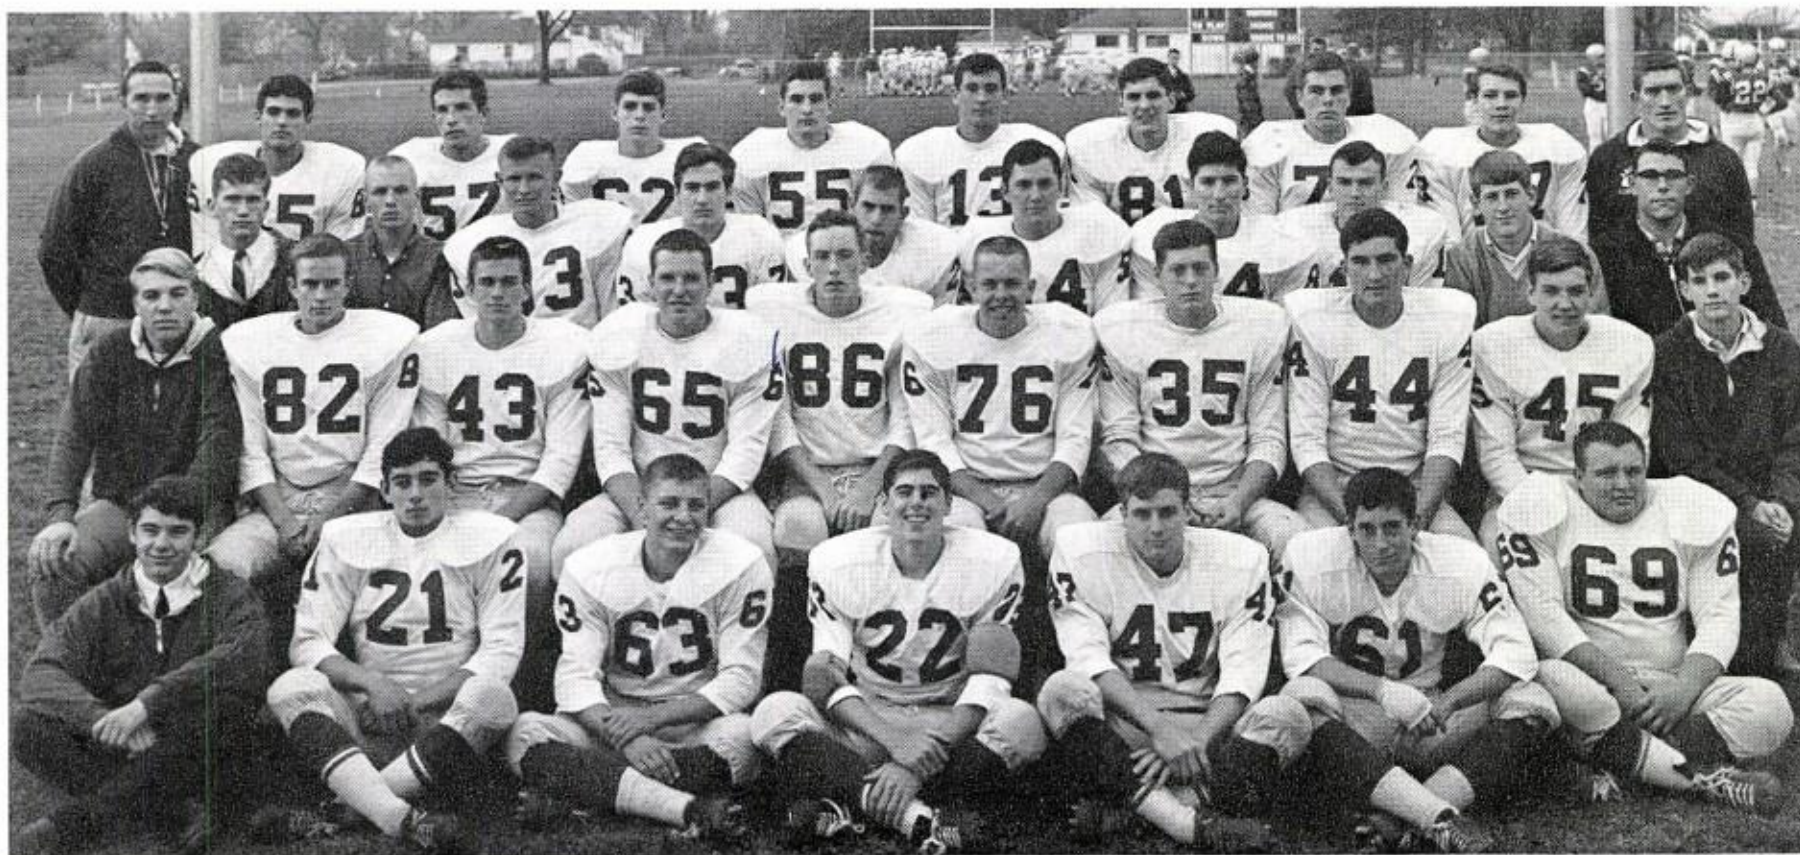

Quarterback Steve Allen throws another vital pass over the heads of attacking Knights to keep the Cards rolling along.

Arlington's Varsity Football team battled to its best finish in twenty-nine years last fall, ending the season with a 7-0-1 mark and sharing the Mid-Suburban League title with Maine West. The Cardinals also landed a record nine men on the all-conference team. These players were quarterback Steve Allen, also named to several All-State teams; half-back Steve Conley; split end Dave Lockwood; tackle Kim Markshausen; center Brad Philo; tailback Brad Somers; fullback Mick Wadzita; and guard Bruce Weber, all seniors. Also named was sophomore tackle Paul Tollefson. Others who contributed greatly to Coach Al Allen's talented squad were seniors Karl Pingel, Ron Horcher, and Jerry Enright.

Coach Allen was assisted by Mr. John Bush, end coach; Mr. Len Burt, line coach; and Mr. Jim Sheehan, trainer. Coach Brendan Flynn guided the Junior Varsity eleven to a record of 7-1, and Coach Tom Pitchford's sophomores finished with a perfect 8-0-0 standard. The Frosh "A" team had a 4-2-1 mark under Mr. Fran Somers, and the "B" team was 6-1.

Membership in Orchesis and the G.R.A. provides girls of Arlington High with a wide range of popular physical activities. Orchesis offers a chance for girls to participate in dance and express themselves in any of its various forms. G.R.A. presents individual and team competition to the sporting girl with a choice of sports from archery to volleyball.

Girls gain admittance to Orchesis by trying out in the Spring of the year. These girls learn and practice new dances which they perform at basketball games and in their annual Orchesis show. Authentic folk dancing, which gives the girls more freedom of expression than conventional dance forms, highlighted this year's Orchesis activities.

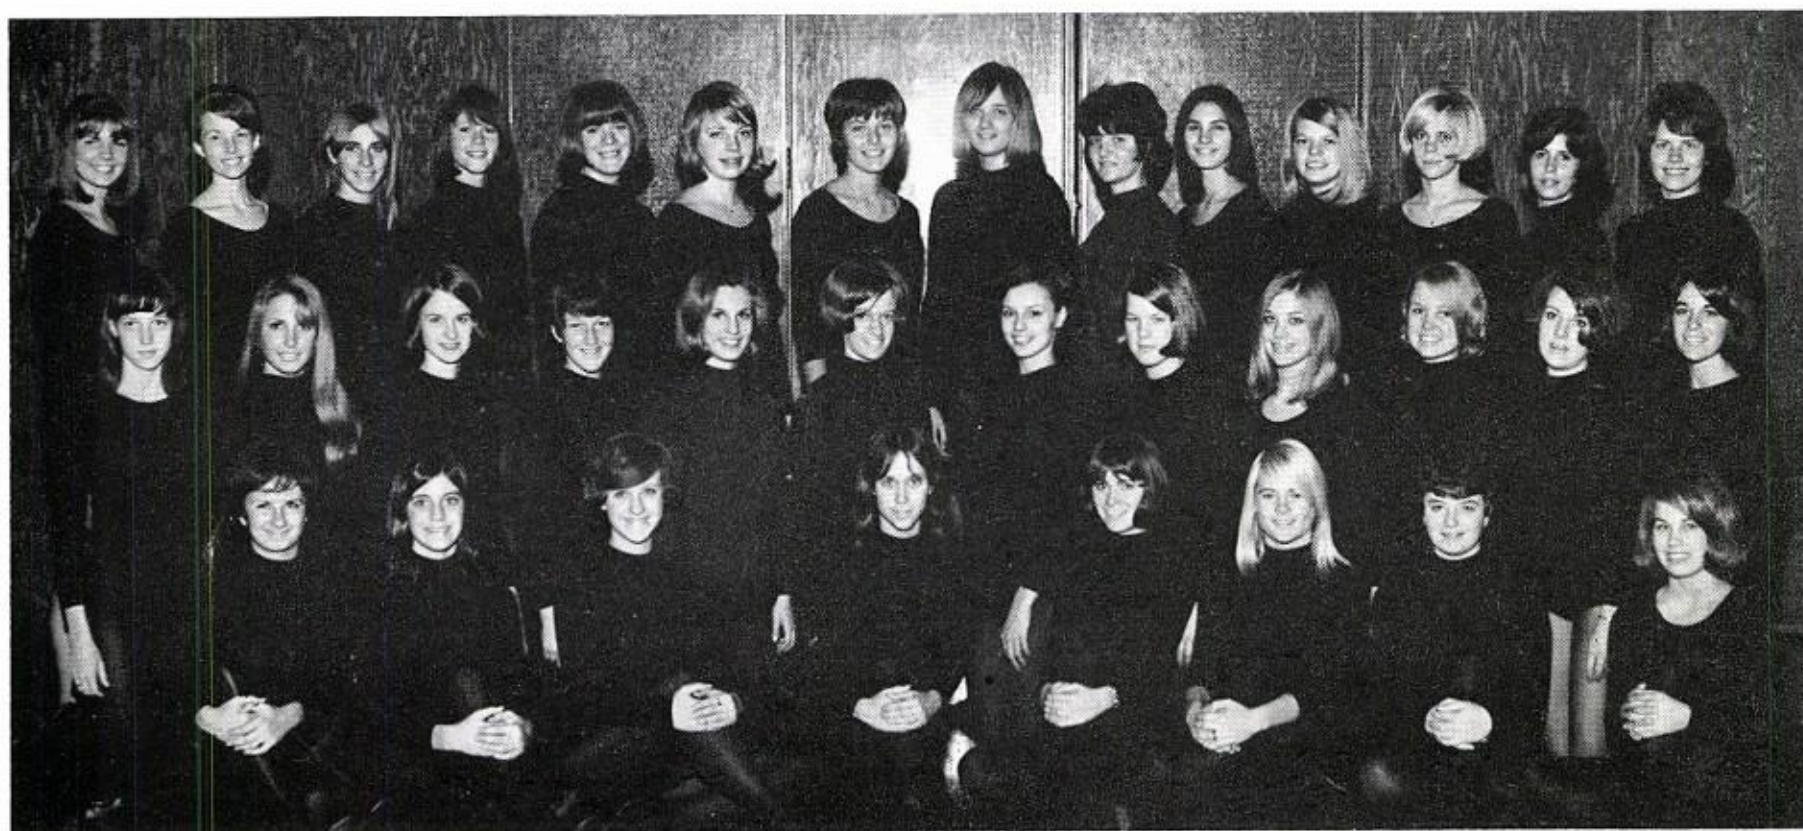

Membership to the Girls Recreation Association is open to all girls at Arlington. This club sponsors eight different sports a year. By participating in these sports and other activities, such as playdays at other schools, the girls accumulate points toward the attainment of an award. Awards are given at the Winter Sports Banquet which is planned by the board. The board is headed by Diana King, president; Jane Olson, vice-president; and Terry Cassidy, secretary. This year's sponsors for G.R.A. are P. E. teachers, Mrs. Mary Lou Hundt and Miss Thompson.

Midwest Champions Share M-SL Crown

Arlington's Varsity Cross-Country squad ran for one of its finest records in school history last fall. The harriers compiled a perfect 12-0 record in dual meets, and finished the season in a tie with Maine West for the Mid-Suburban League title after finishing second in the conference meet. Arlington runners also defeated seventeen other teams to win the Mid-West Invitational Cross-Country Meet at Janesville, Wisconsin. In the District meet, Cardinal harriers narrowly missed an invitation to go to Champaign for the state meet by finishing third. Only the top two teams were eligible to go downstate. Winner of the District meet was Evanston, the eventual state champion.

Returning as head coach was Mr. Bruce Samoore, who in two seasons at Arlington has made his harriers into a power in state competition. He was again assisted by Mr. John Gardner, who guided the Frosh-Soph squad to a first-division finish. Next year will see the return of five of the top seven runners on this year's squad, who were senior captain Greg Busch, senior Larry Malcolmson, juniors Rory Cassidy, Dave Dieters, and Rick Saxton, sophomore Tom "Archway" Swanson, and freshman Scott Butler.

Cross-Country Captain Greg Busch practices his winning form at Pioneer Park, scene of many of the team's practices.

"A" Club, Arlington's most active service organization, was again sponsored this year by Mr. Guy Vena. "A" Club membership is open to boys who have earned a major letter in a varsity sport.

Officers of "A" Club were Kim Markshausen, president, Greg Busch, vice-president, and Tom MacCarthy, secretary-treasurer.

"A" Club again sponsored the annual Homecoming dance, held on October 1st. The Boys' Gym was decorated in a fall motif and featured an orange-and-white canopy. The theme was "Autumn Nocturne".

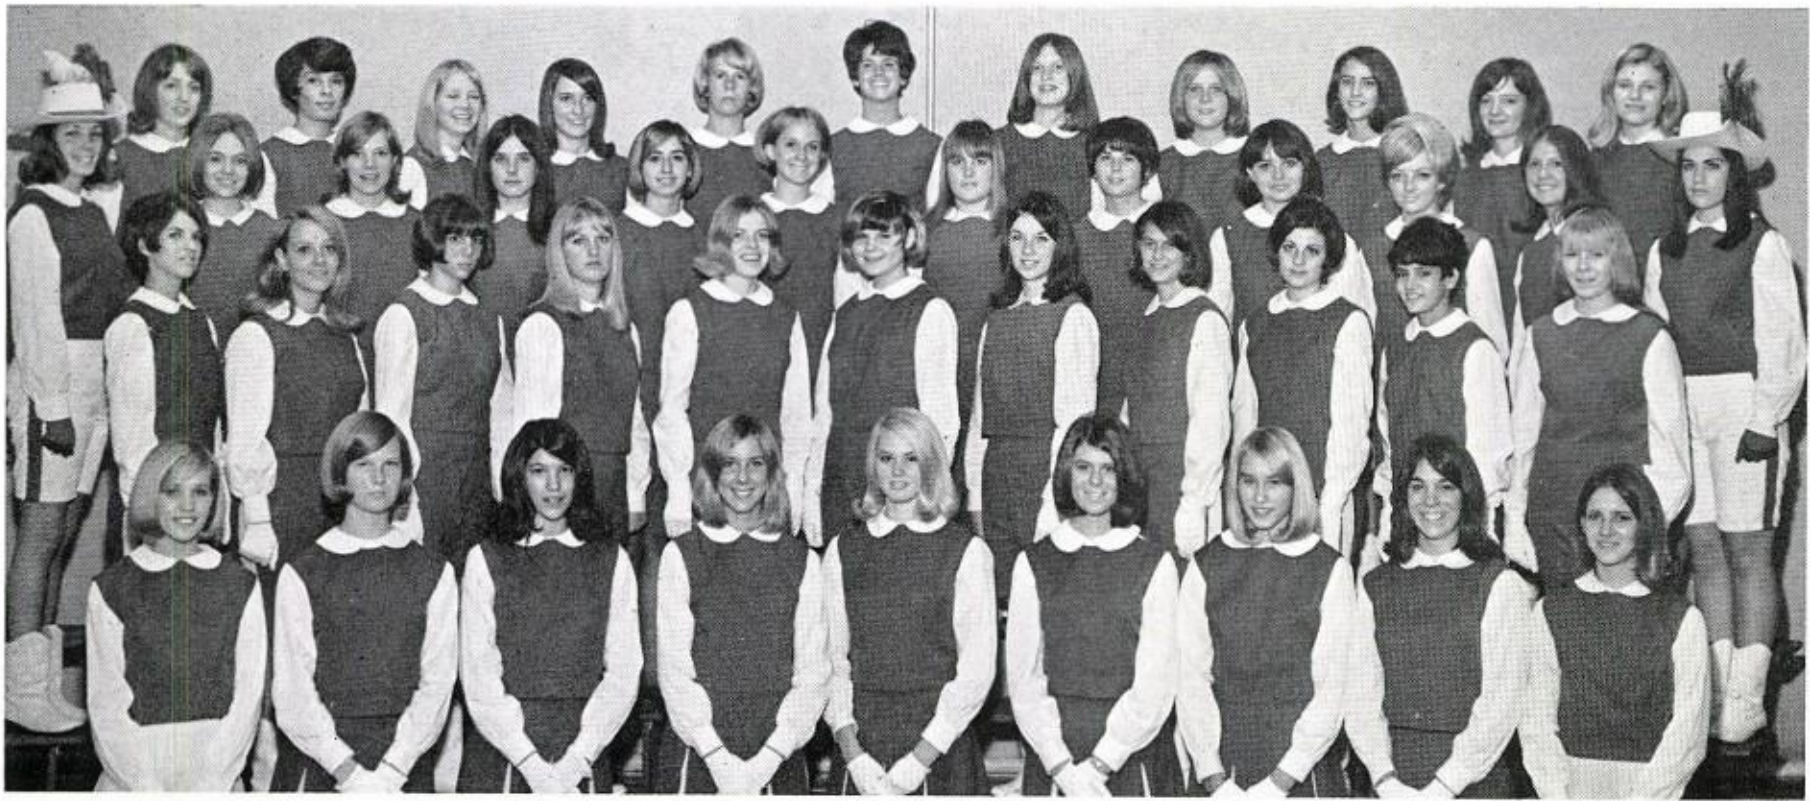

Other service projects of "A" Club were the buying of special items for the athletic department, maintenance of the Bemidji ball courts, a coke dance sponsored by the club's pledges, and the donation of Easter dinners to needy families in the area. The sale of Cardinal bleacher cushions was a new project of "A" Club this year. The club also raffled off the Homecoming football.

"A" Club pledges were again required to submit to the wishes of actives. One pledge commented that "the heat was really on this year." "A" Club again attended several Chicago Black Hawk games.

Corps Marches With Precision And Skill

"Hip, ho, hut, ho, . . ." accompanied by the steady stamp of sneakers on the gym floor were familiar sounds during Mrs. Lagerlof's fourth hour class as the Coronets practiced their drills.

Captains Cindy Karkula and Ruth Dougan were responsible for the precision drills of the Corps. The thirty-four girls marched in parades and performed at three half-time shows during the football and basketball seasons.

A special branch of the Coronets is the Color Guard. Composed of thirteen girls, this group was under the leadership of Debbie Drake. Their drills always concluded home pre-game shows as they marched with flags, rifles, and sabers.

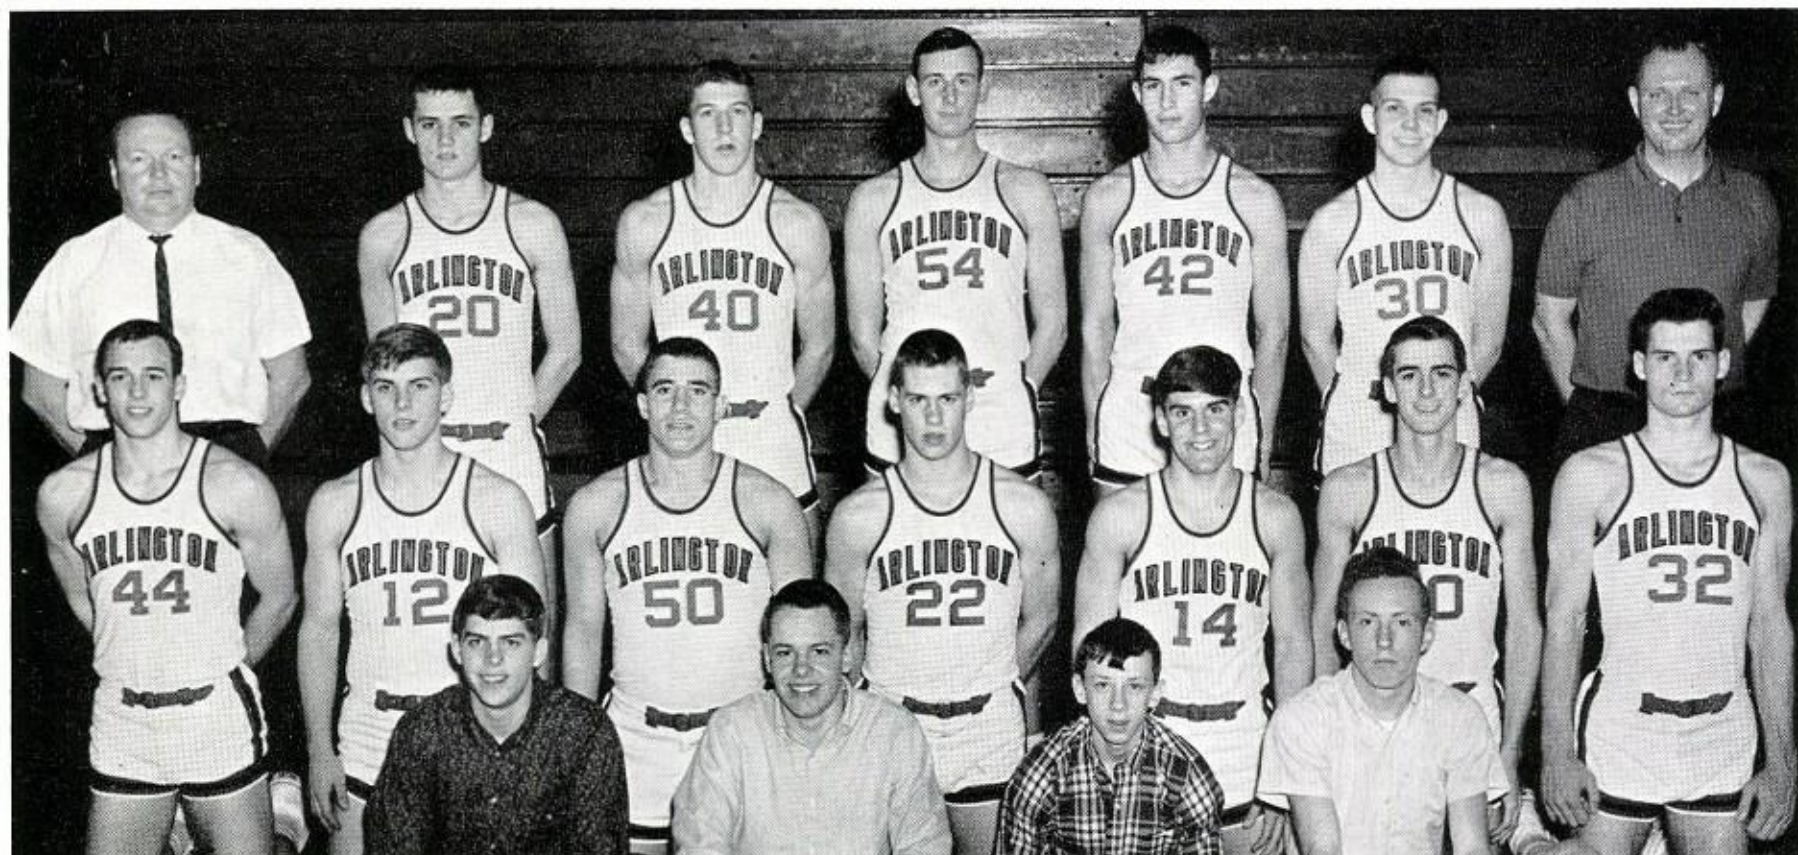

In the corner of the girl's gym was often heard the clunk of a falling baton or the swish of pom-poms as the Cardettes prepared their routines. The ten girls, led by Paula Schomburg, preceded the band at the home football games and in parades. All their routines were also seen at half-time shows.

Senior guard Steve Allen skillfully avoids his opponent as he dribbles down court on his way to another field goal.

Excitement fills the air during the Prospect game as Terry Townley goes up to attempt another shot for the Cardinals.

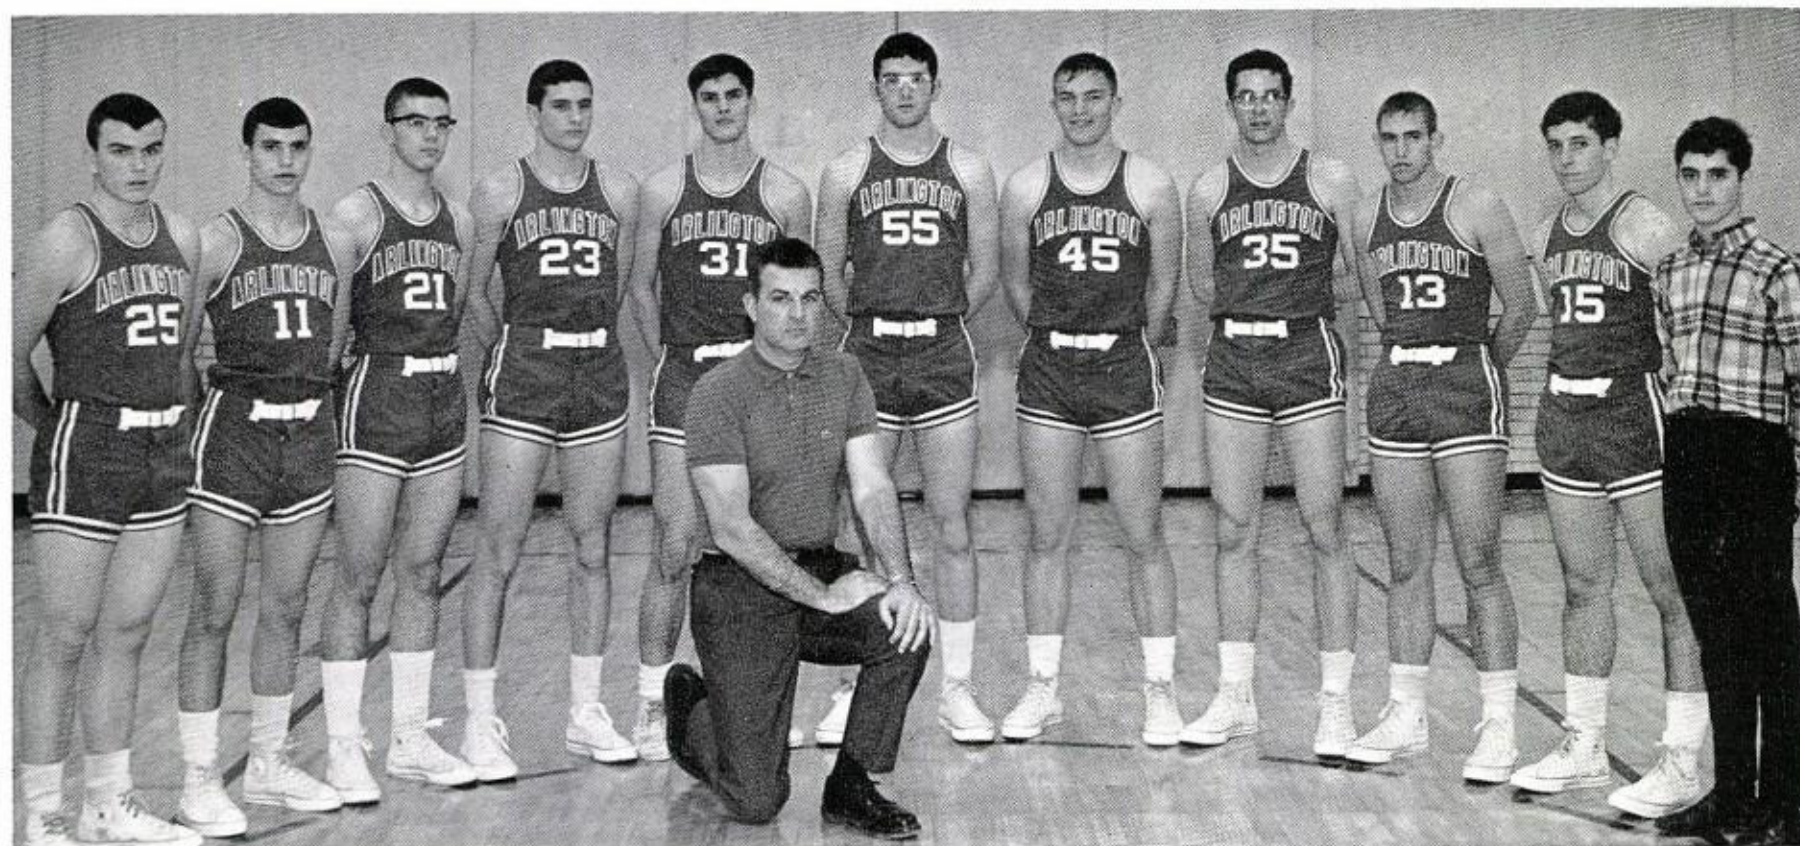

Another link in the long chain of successful seasons at Arlington this year was the Varsity Basketball team, rated the best in school history by many long-time observers. Arlington cagers compiled a very impressive 20-4 record, which included a victory over Elite-Eight finalist York and winning the consolation bracket at the Kankakee Holiday Tournament. The Cardinals' 11-1 standard in the Mid-Suburban League placed them first in the conference. Arlington's cagers finally bowed to a fired-up Antioch club in the Regional finals, missing a chance to advance to the Arlington Sectional where they would enjoy the home-court advantage which led them to be undefeated this year at home.

Sparking the squad was All-Stater Steve Allen, who set a career scoring record over three seasons as a regular. Dave Lockwood, Terry Townley, Jim Donchess, and Steve Conley rounded out the starting five for this exceptionally well-balanced Arlington squad.

Arlington's Wrestlers Score On The Mat

Pinning an opponent to the mat, all conference senior Brad Somers show the form which won third place in State meet.

As first-year members of the Mid-Suburban Conference, Coach Willie Myers's wrestling crew turned in one of its finest seasons ever. In their conference debut, the Arlington matmen finished second. Other team triumphs included the Proviso West Quad Championship, The Lake Park Quad Championship, the Palatine tournament championship, the District championship, and a tenth place finish in the State finals.

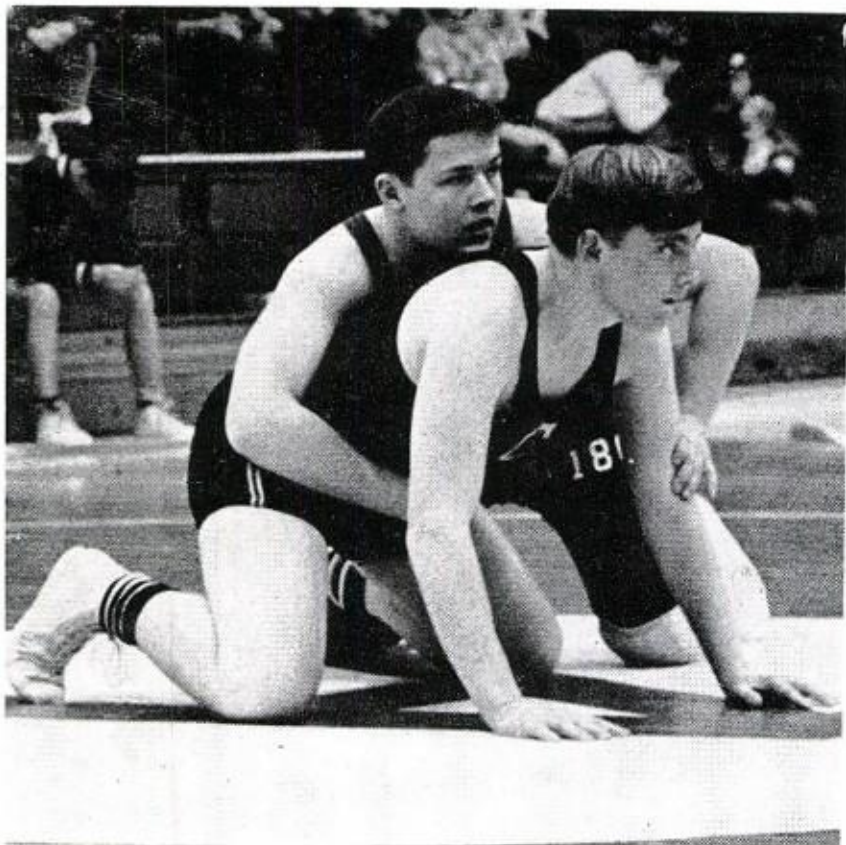

The varsity squad, coached by Mr. Myers, was led by co-captains Brad Somers and Tom MacCarthy. Other varsity standouts included Brad Philo, Mike Jones, Clark Sims, Verne Gongol, Kelley Reid, Mike Mills, Jim Whitnell, Jay McDonell, and Gary Prochaska. Both Mike Jones and Brad Somers advanced to the State finals. The high point of Brad's season came when he placed third in Champaign.

The junior varsity, sophomore, and freshman teams were coached by Mr. John Bush, Mr. Bruce Glover and Mr. Bill Svrluga. Valuable men on the squad were Gerry Brosk, Tom Barkulis, Pat McCoy, and Ray Smith.

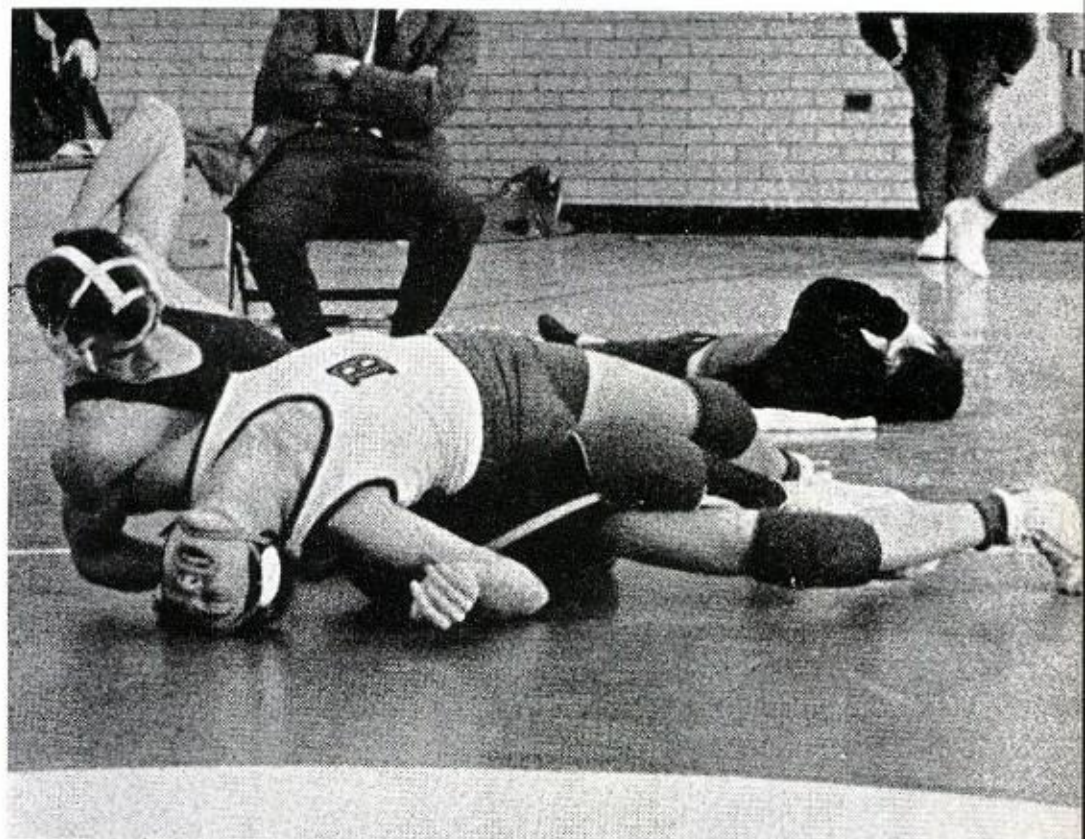

This year's sophomore grapplers gained third place in the Mid-Suburban. Standouts on the team were Denny Meacham, Noel Bauler, and Doug Thieman.

Freshmen ended the season as M-SL champions.

Wrestlers Turn In A Sparkling Season

Striving for a win during his match against Conant, senior Mike Jones is in a ready position to try to pin his opponent.

Gyrating Gymnasts

Arlington's Varsity gymnastics squad stepped out of the limelight this past year as far as state and district championships went, but Coach Tom Walthouse was busy building a team of future champions. With seniors Hank Taylor on the side horse, Art Weidner in the all-around competition, Rick Atwater handling the trampoline and tumbling chores, and Don Von Ebers on the parallel bars, along with some outstanding work by some underclassmen, the Cards managed to finish their new Mid-Suburban League schedule in second place with only one loss, a six-point decision at the hands of the Prospect Knights.

In the Forest View Meet, Arlington finished third in the competition, with 48-1/3 points, less than two points away from the champs. Arlington's only District champ was Taylor, who took the side horse event.

In the State meet, the Cards found themselves in trouble due to a lack of final-round qualifiers. Arlington's entire score, 5-1/2 points, was earned by sophomore standout Terry Haines who managed to take a fifth on the tramp to land the Cards nineteenth.

This year's swim team could boast of few successes in their fourteen meets, but was not lacking in individual talent. Among the varsity tankmen John Erickson proved to be tough competition for his opponents in the breaststroke and individual medley. Lowell Christy recorded some fine times in the backstroke while Scott Guilfoil and Dick Robinson displayed strength in the butterfly and free-style respectively. As for the Frosh-Soph, Kurt Thomson showed promise in the distance free-style and freshman Eric Lindbad exhibited a strong backstroke.

Coach John Gardner seems to feel that lack of depth in this year's team was the main contributing factor to the season's disappointments. Despite the fact that the tankmen practice five nights a week at the Saint Viator pool and possess some very capable swimmers, success rarely dawns. Their effort and enthusiasm, however, cannot be stifled.

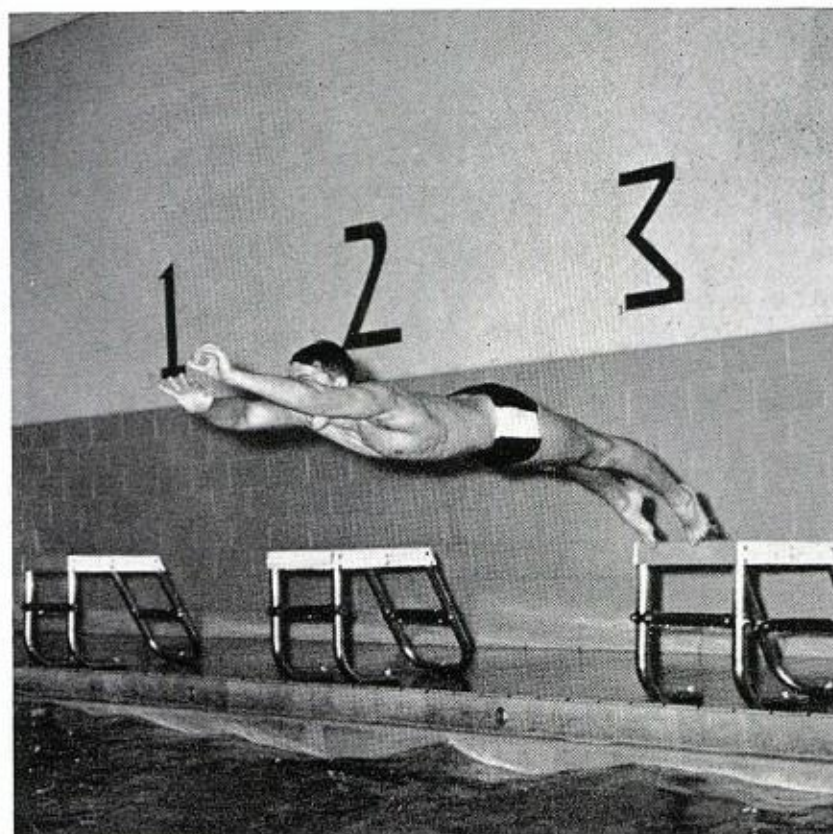

Although this year's team standing did not compliment the efforts of our swimmers, school records were broken. Among these were the medley relay event and the one-hundred yard butterfly event.

Gliding through the water, co-captain Lowell Christy warms up for an attempt to lower his backstroke time.

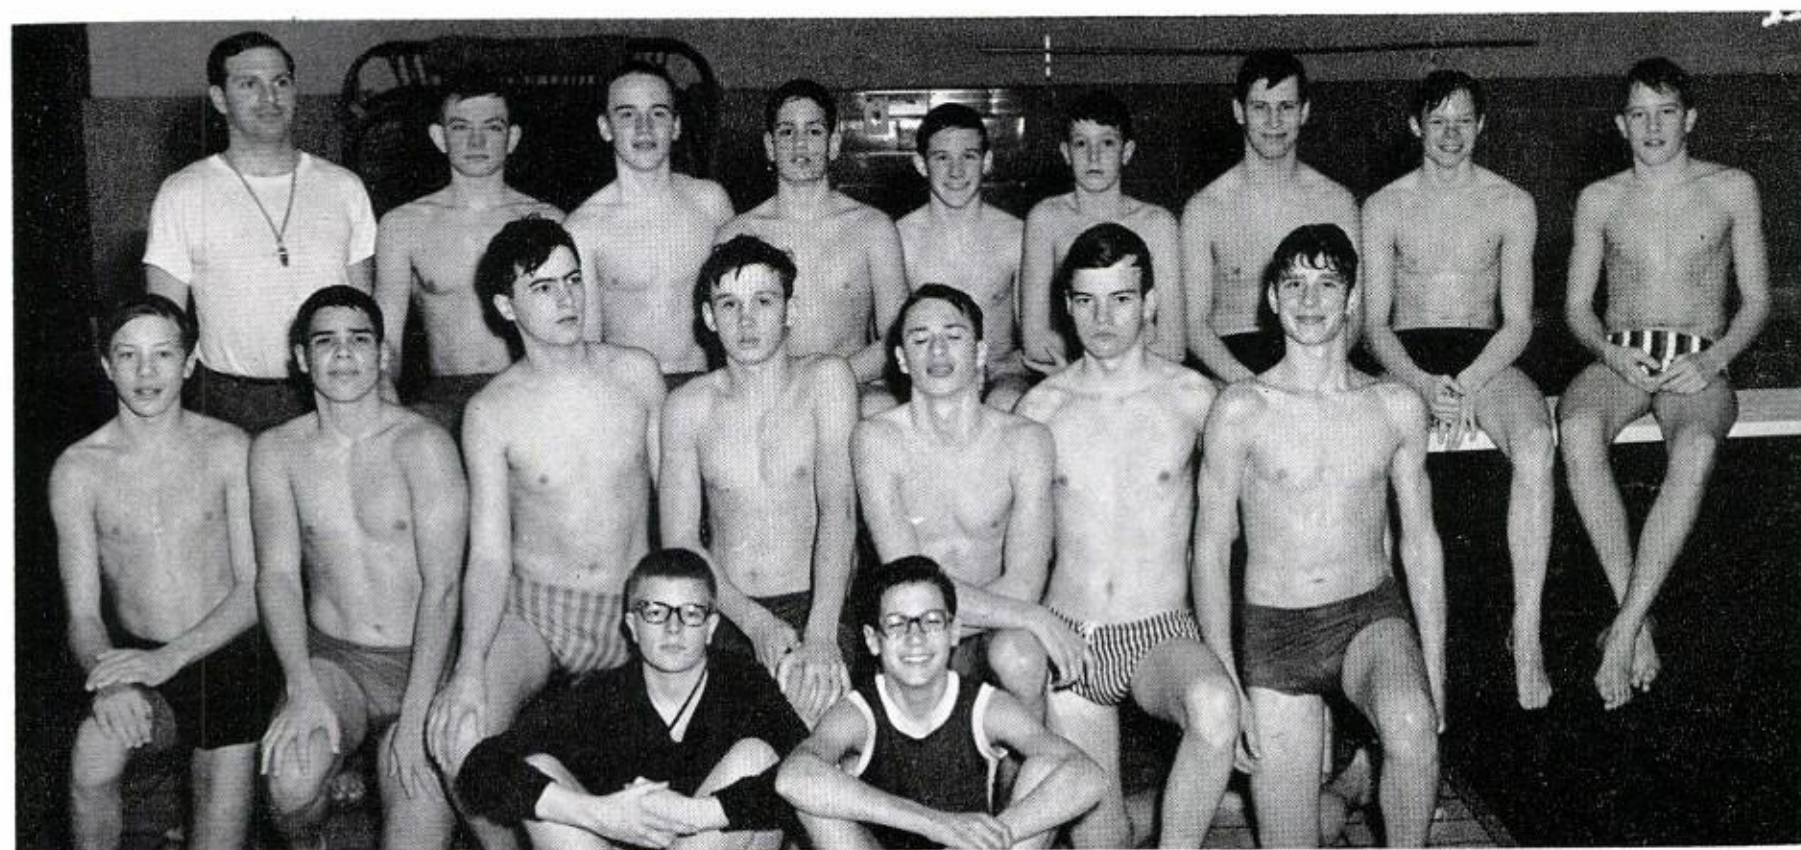

Slipping through the water, John Erickson displays the form that has made him a standout in the breaststroke.

Senior Greg Zachwieja displays the form that made him the District Discus Champ as he launches another discus.

A good practice session never hurts anybody, thinks junior Rory Cassidy, jogging on Arlington's famed "race track."

Racing To Victory

Striding out, Arlington thinclad Larry Malcolmson takes the baton and sprints off the blocks toward a victory.

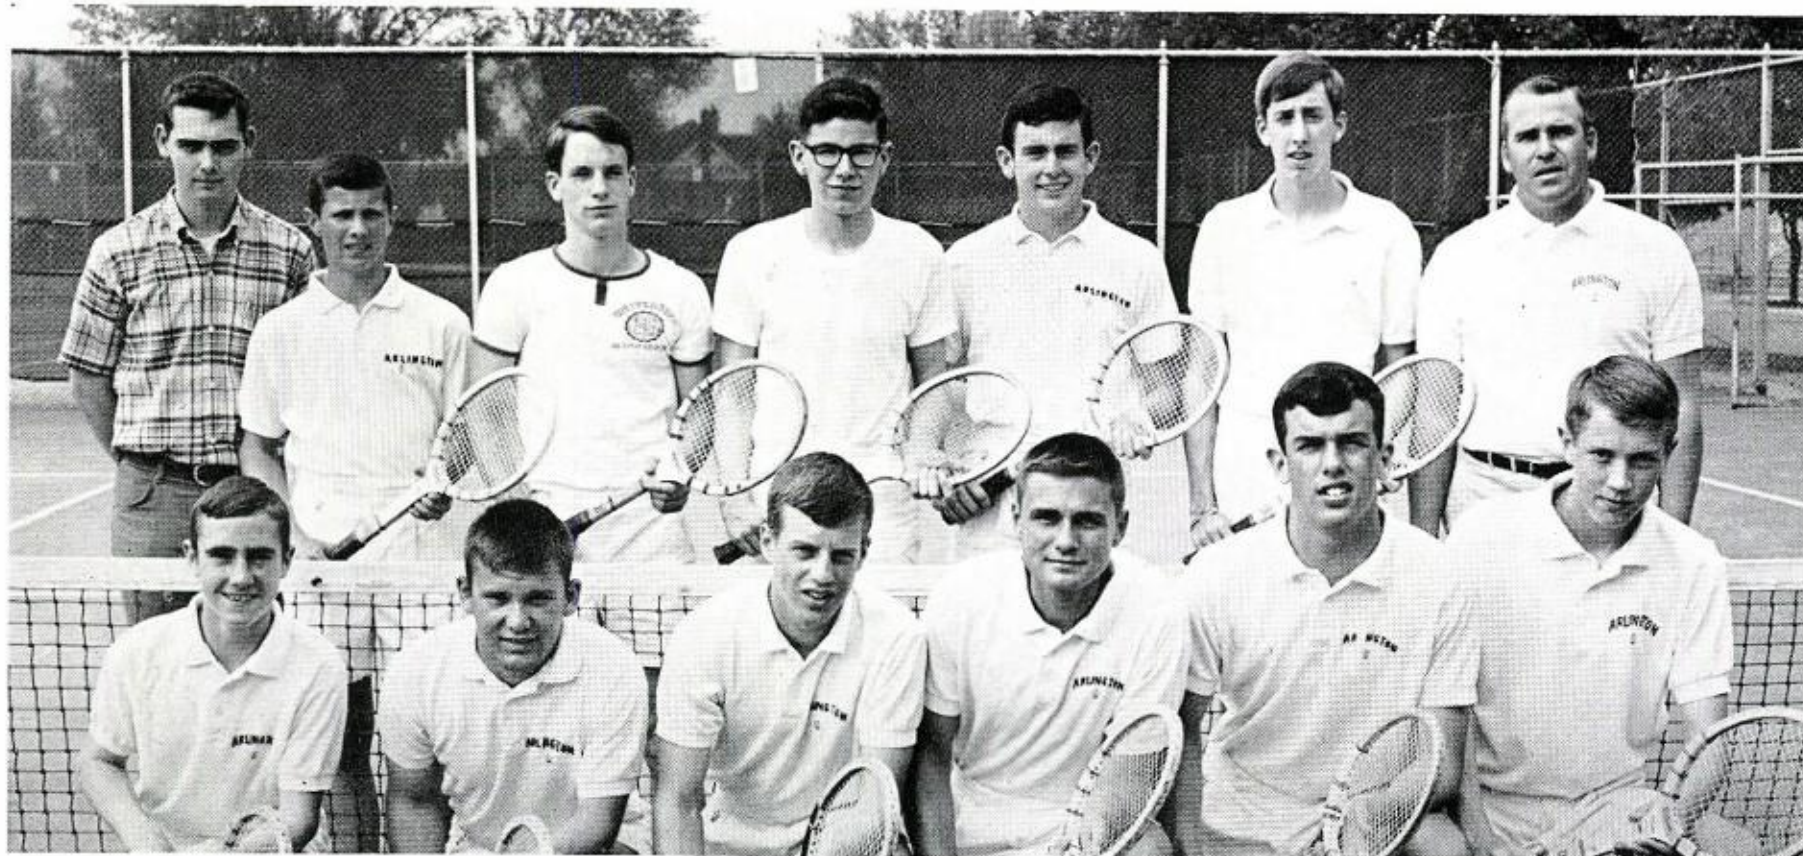

Arlington's varsity track squad entered its 1967 season as a new entry in the Mid-Suburban Conference. The Cards welcomed the chance to regain their status in a new conference after finishing their last year in the West Suburban Conference in last position. The thinclads did find some consolation, though, as they finished ninth in the district in 1966.

Under the veteran direction of head coach Mr. Bruce Samore and assistant coaches Mr. Leonard Burt, who handles the weight events, Mr. William Myers, whose specialty is the running events, and Mr. Daniel Thyreen, who guides the jumpers, the Cards acquired both the experience and the knowledge necessary for a winning team.

Going into the season the team's roster included six returning lettermen in discus-throwing Greg Zachwieja, the 1966 district champion in the event, Kim Markshausen, another weightman, and four top runners: Larry Malcolmson, Jerry Enright, Jack Kanne, and big Jim Donchess.

Senior Greg Busch and juniors Dave Dieters and Rory Cassidy, all top Cross Country runners, provided the necessary depth a winning team needs.

Arlington's sophomore cindermen also showed promise for the years ahead in this year's competition.

Netmen "Love" It

Arlington's varsity netmen entered the 1967 season with both the spirit and the experienced personnel to capture the state crown.

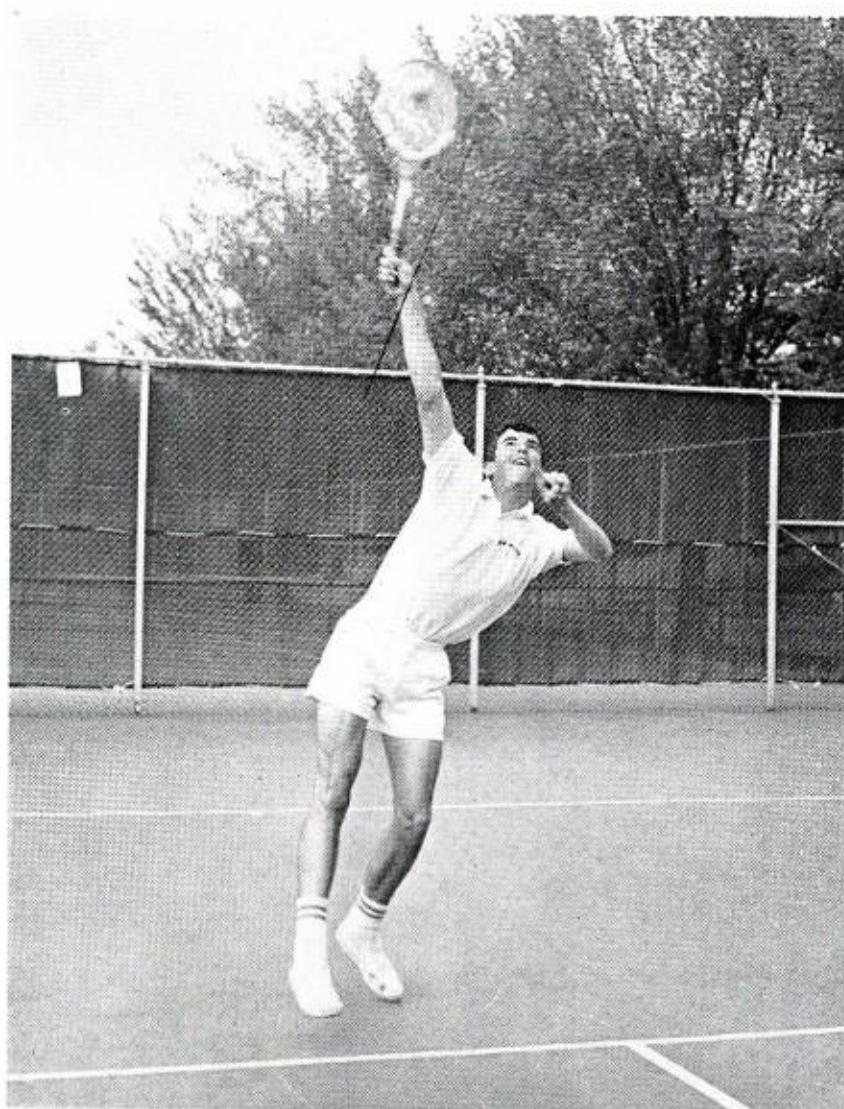

The Cardinals have always been game for the title and finally won it in 1964. The following year found the Big Red in the runner-up position, losing only to a tough New Trier squad in the finals. In 1966 the Cardinals won their fourth straight conference crown and qualified four team members for state competition.

The year's team, under the veteran direction of Mr. Tom Pitchford, included five returning lettermen.

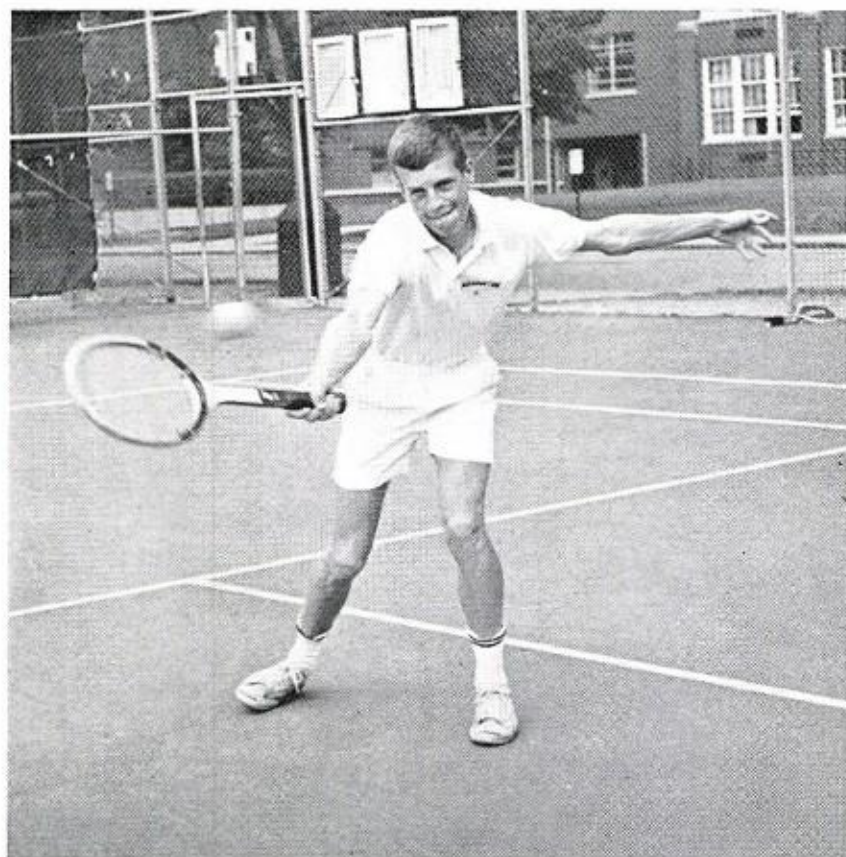

Junior Bill Von Boeckman and seniors Jim Esser and John Jarecki returned to their respective first, second, and third singles spots. Esser rounded out the 1966 season by capturing second place honors in the singles division of the rugged West Suburban Conference while Jarecki took a third place. Both boys qualified for state competition.

Senior John Brost and Junior Matt Weeg moved into first doubles competition replacing the invincible 1966 pair of Dave Milligan and Brian Burke.

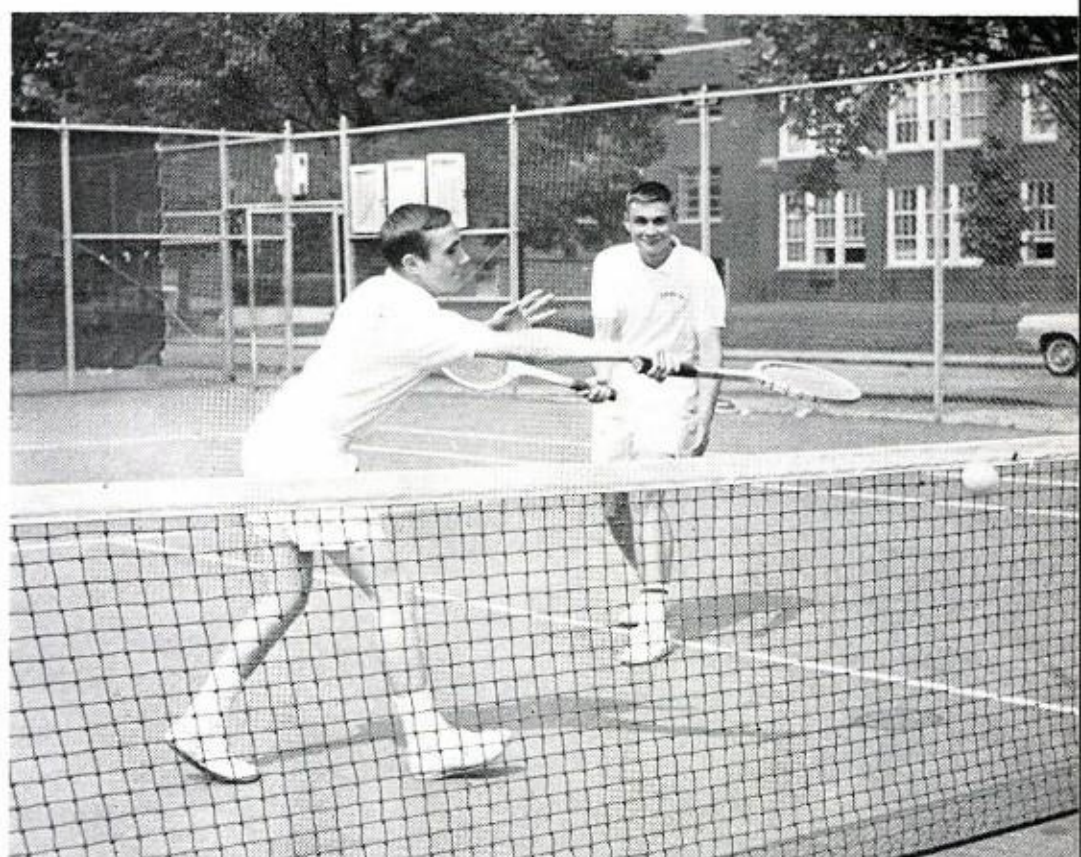

Frosh-Sophs were again coached by Bob Knilians.

John Jarecki skillfully returns the ball to his opponent during a lightning singles contest on Arlington's home courts.

Poised for contact, senior co-captain Jim Esser displays the winning form typical with Arlington's varsity racketeers.

Sinking That Putt!

Arlington's Varsity and Frosh-Soph golf teams got off to a fresh start this year. Not only did Mr. Brendan Flynn replace Mr. Stack as coach, but this was their first year in the Mid-Suburban League Conference. Last year's graduation took a heavy toll of experienced golfers. Only one of the lettermen returned to the squad this year. Several juniors who gained experience during last season rounded out the Varsity squad. These boys were chosen after several days of practice rounds. They strove for accuracy and low scores in order to qualify for the team.

Once again the course at Golden Acres served as Arlington's home course. Snow was still burying the ground when the team started their practices. They practiced their teeing off, drives, and putting in preparation for their first dual golf meet.

The main ambition of the Frosh-Soph team was to prepare themselves for future positions on the Varsity squad. They also practiced every day and participated in meets.

Throughout the season the team participated in nine dual meets and two invitationals. The districts were held at Chevy Chase Country Club. The state finals were held in Champaign on May 19th and 20th.

Stealing To Victory

Arlington's first year in the new Mid-Suburban League marked the second year at the helm for varsity coach Fran Somers. This year saw an improvement from the dismal 3-15 record compiled by last year's team which placed Arlington last in the West Suburban Conference. The Cardinals played fourteen games in the Mid-Suburban League this year, with several non-conference contests and the District tournament.

Top players for this year's squad were senior outfielder Brad Somers, senior infielders Paul Parish and Bob Hecht, infielder-pitcher Ron Horcher and senior pitcher Steve Allen. Several promising juniors also contributed to the team, brightening the future of Arlington baseball.

Junior varsity baseball was again coached by Mr. Robert Carter. The JV's continued the winning tradition established by the undefeated 1966 squad. Mr. Guy Vena again served as Frosh-Soph coach, and Freshman teams were coached by Mr. Ray Leafgren.

Arlington's varsity second baseman, Paul Parish, reaches in an attempt to make the out, as a Maine foe slides in.

Following through, senior Ron Horcher watches his base hit bounce into center field before running to first base.

From their dugout, several Cards watch intently as our varsity baseball team swings its way to another victory.

Individuals

Arlington High School's success depends entirely on the individual. Individuals and groups of individuals are the building blocks of all the activities at Arlington. A student's interactions with other people help him to develop more fully as an individual. The individual student is, himself, responsible for the success or failure of his personal learning experience.

Seniors Conclude Final Year at Arlington

SENIOR CLASS OFFICERS

Seated: Jim Sarbaugh. Standing: Paul Bowen, Sue LeBeau, Carol Spomer.

Seniors began their final year at Arlington as fall leaves fell to the ground. This fall, however, was different from the years previous for the Class of '67. To the Seniors Homecoming Game meant priority on the bleachers and a football line up and Homecoming Court consisting of their classmates. All were interested in college applications or future vocations.

Winter's arrival meant plans for the Christmas Ball. Under the leadership of Jim Sarbaugh, President; Paul Bowen, Vice-president; Terrie Malone, Secretary; and Sue LeBeau, Treasurer; the seniors sponsored "Deep in December". The profits were added to the treasury which was $8 used to purchase a gift presented to the school upon graduation.

Spring's arrival meant the end of high school days. By this time most of the seniors had plans in mind for the future; for some they were college and for others either jobs or marriage. Plans for the traditional Senior Class Party were formulated. The juniors sponsored a memorable Prom in honor of the S. graduates.

Summer soon came and with it, graduation. The seniors had had their last Homecoming, seen their last games, and attended their last dances as students of Arlington High School. The Class of '67 was at the start of something new and challenging.

Junior Class Has Basic Goal: The Prom!

This year's junior class was lead by President Dick Witcher and Carolyn Dobbins as vice-president. Sally Faner was recording secretary and Cindy A. Johnson was made responsible for the junior class finances. Serving as the class of '67's Traffic Court was Mark Warrens.

As October rolled around the juniors found themselves faced with a big responsibility — preparation for their future and for most of them this was college. It was quite a novelty for them as they went to take their first encounter with college entrance examinations.

This year the Junior class sponsored a winter dance. The purpose of this dance was to raise money for the Prom. The dance was held February 25 in the Boy's Gym. The juniors also sponsored a coke dance and a concession at one of the football games.

The location of the '67 Junior-Senior Prom was Riverwood Country Club. This dance was presented to the Seniors by the Junior Class on June 9, 1967. Johnny Marlow's Band provided the entertainment. Preparations were an integral part of the '67 Prom. Industrious juniors spent much time working on the bids, ticket, theme, and publicity committees for a bids, ticket, theme, and publicity committees in order to make the prom a memorable event for all.

Sophomores Strive For Success In Goals

In their second year of school at Arlington, sophomores attempted a new idea in their class board. This year sophomores could attend open class board meetings. For the first time, sophomores did not elect representatives from each homeroom. All sophomores were welcomed to the meetings and became members after attending two-thirds of the meetings. The new open board created enthusiasm and participation from the class.

The sophomores participated in several projects this year. Their class board sponsored a service project for the school with the assistance of their counselors Miss Bazik, Mrs. Claney, and Mr. Hicks. The sophomores also continued to work toward the big goal of their junior year — the Prom. In the fall the class sponsored the annual autumn turn-about which they called "La Discotheque". The sophomores also received concessions for two football games in the fall.

The sophomore class board was led by president Gary Drake. He was assisted by vice-president Liz Galloway. Sue Johnson took over the responsibility of secretary and Donna Kuharich that of treasurer. Sue Carr held the office of the traffic court justice.

IN MEMORY

During the short year which Mariann Crouch spent at Arlington as a freshman, her accomplishments were numerous. As a cheerleader she helped to lead her class in school spirit. She was also an active member of class board, serving on many committees. Through her willingness to serve her school and her classmates she proved herself an inspiring example as a member of the Class of 1969.

Freshmen Set Up Goals For Future Years

The Freshman class, 430 strong, was lead into the busy world of high school by their counselors Mrs. Barber, Mr. Clark, and Miss Mueller. To them, high school was a new and bewildering experience. Freshman Orientation was sponsored by Student Council in May of '66 to introduce the new frosh to Arlington High School. Also at the beginning of this school year, members of Student Council acted as hall guides during the passing period to help the lost frosh get to their classes on time.

The class of 1970 sponsored many projects throughout this school year. Fund raising projects were organized to add to their treasury. The frosh also sponsored a dance in May to gain some needed money. Any extra money in their treasury will be used for the prom they will sponsor in their Junior year.

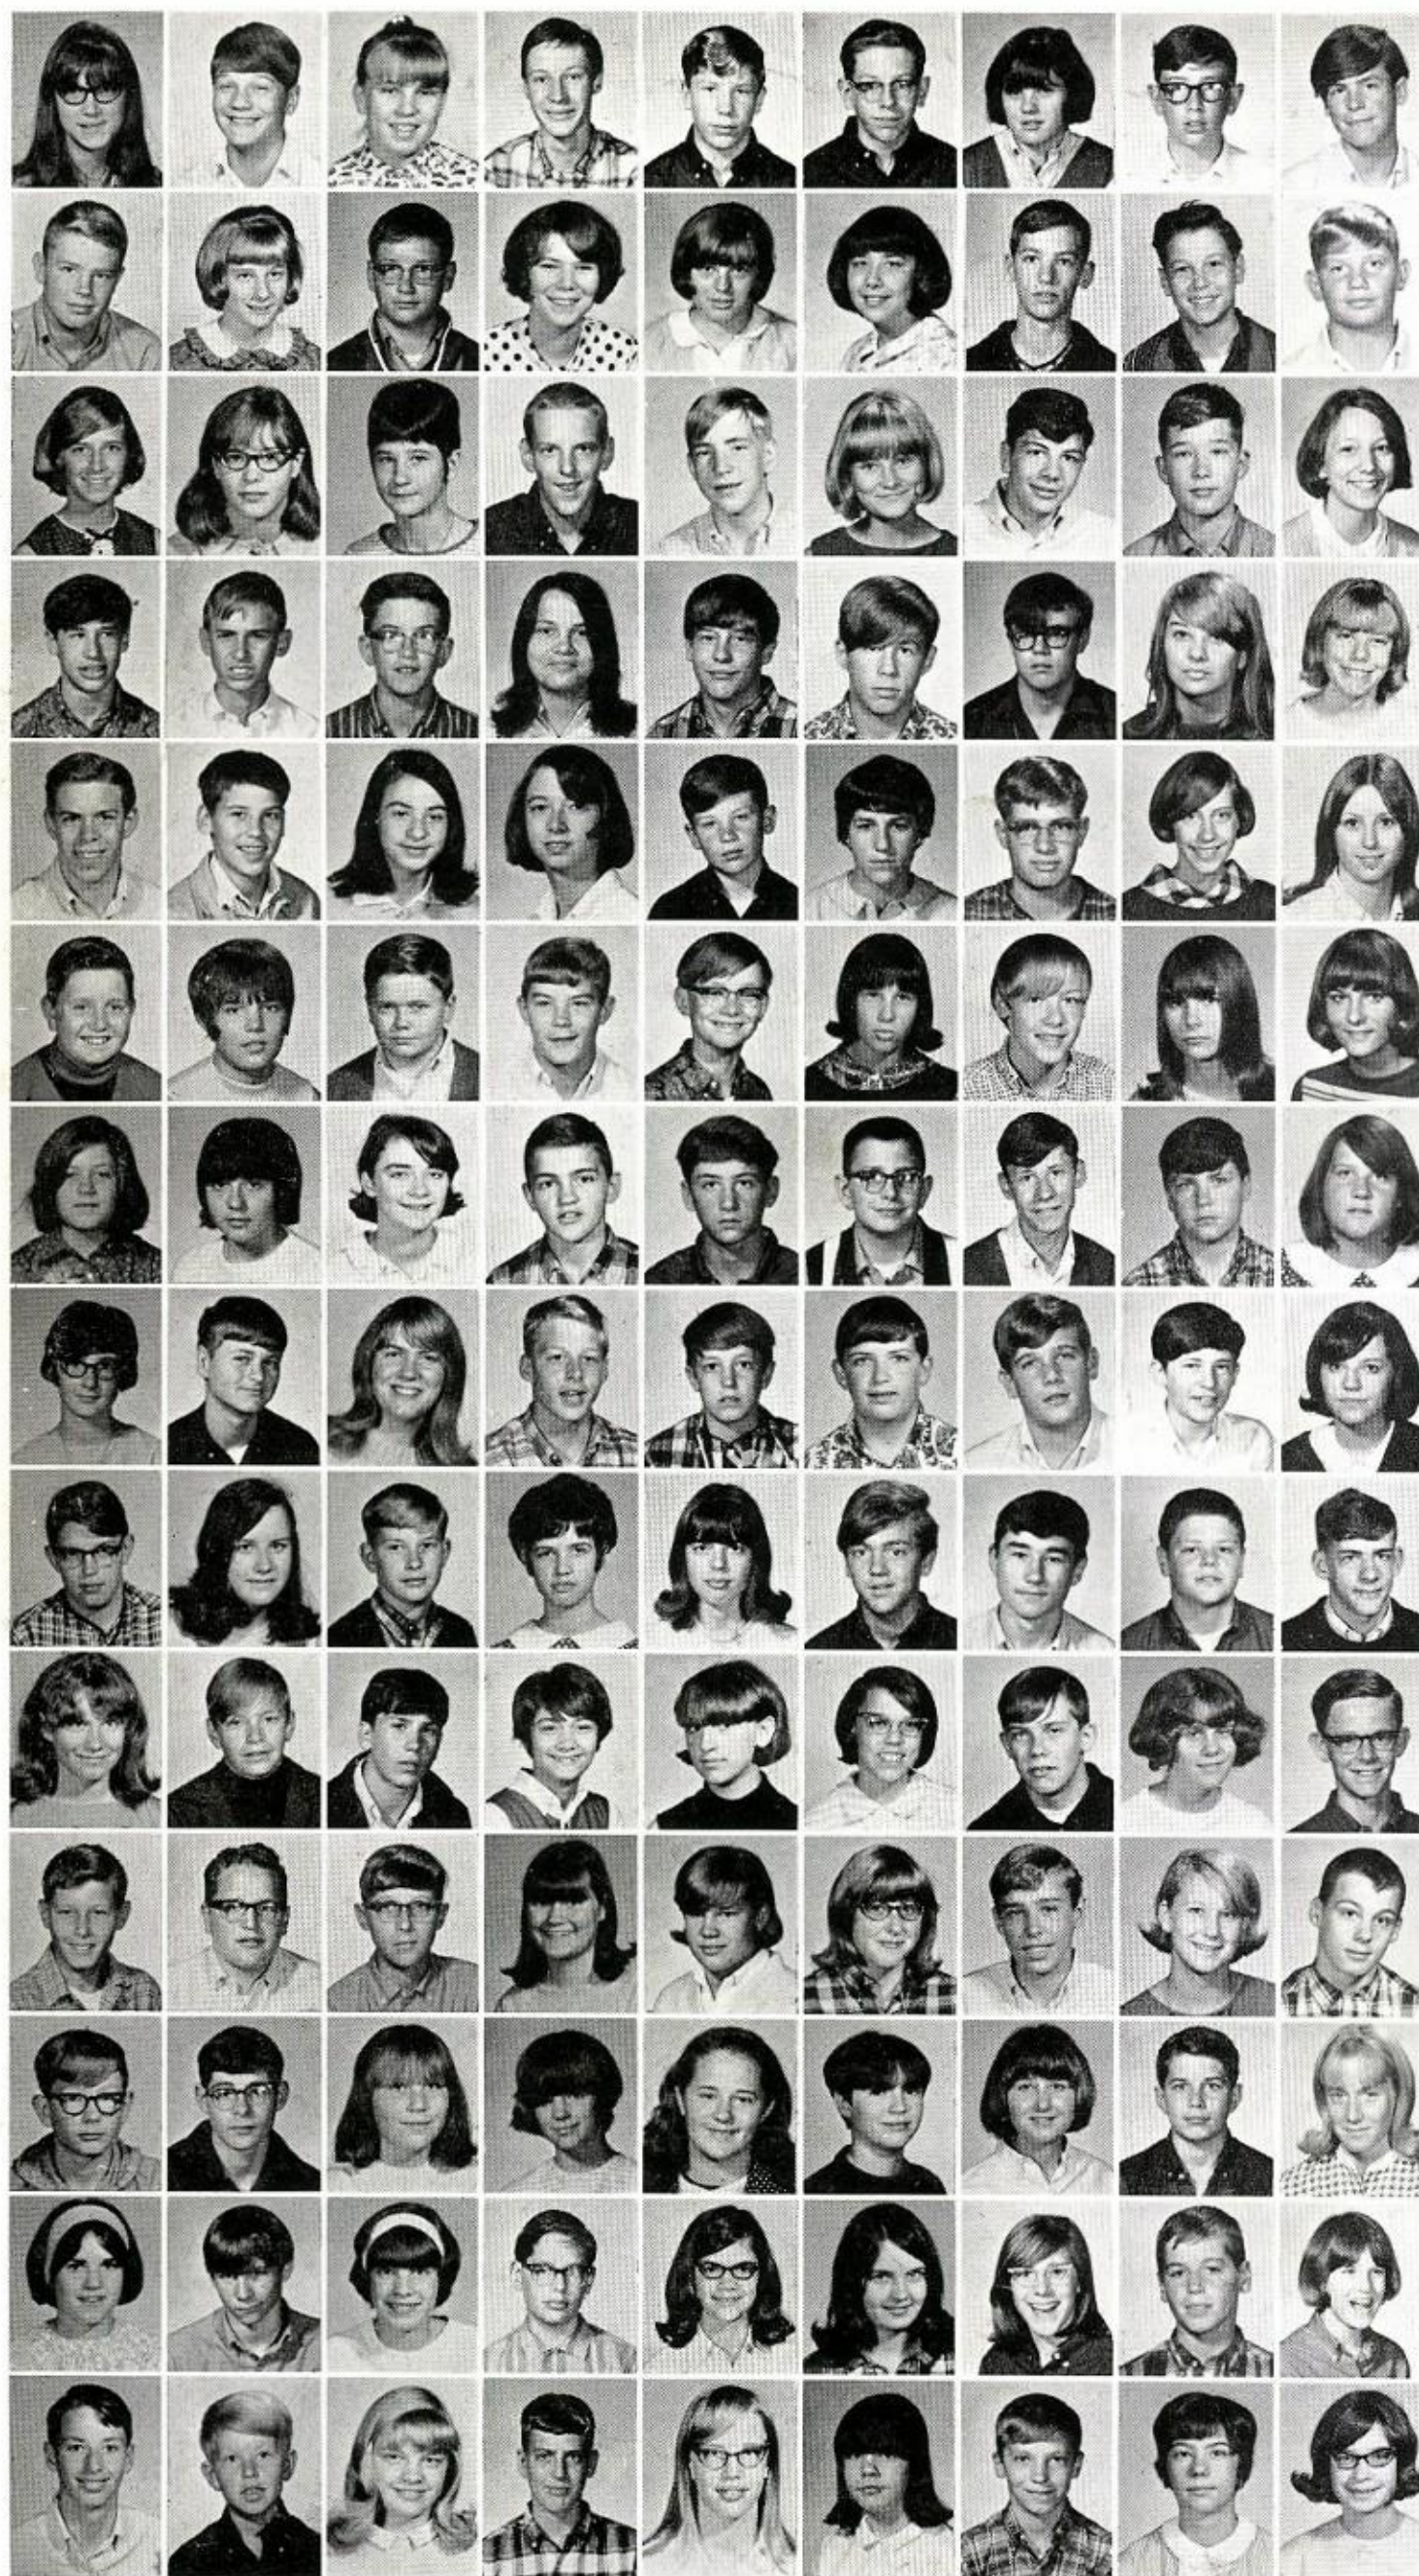

In September the freshmen held elections and an assembly to elect their class board officers. Filling the office of president was Ken Malcolmson. Jenger Hilgenfeld was elected vice-president and Diane Staahl was elected secretary. Treasurer was Gail Collins and traffic court was Sue Ramsey. The freshmen class board was open to all interested freshmen until November when board members were elected in each homeroom. All interested freshmen were invited to attend the class board meetings and join to help make their own class a very successful one.

Dressed in sailing costumes, the Freshman Boys' Chorus Proudly sings "Anchors Aweigh" during the talent show.

Janet Lense and Kim Moore participate in homecoming ceremonies for their last time until they become seniors.

Cheerleaders flatter the Freshman boys in hopes they will buy Homecoming flowers for the girls.

With all thoughts of '67 Heights off their minds, editors and staff members relax at a game of cards.

Well Deserved And Appreciated Ending

Our school year is ended; every copy, head, and caption has been written; and that last deadline has been met. After a year of hard work and concentration, the '67 Heights has been completed. Our goal was to recreate the happenings and excitement of the past year with creativity and variety. We could not have done it without the help of our advisor, Mr. Robert Boesel.

We would especially like to thank senior Paul Bowen for his assistance in taking some pictures when a professional photographer wasn't available.

What is a yearbook without editors? The constant work of our editors, Barb Broscovak, Pam Johnson, and John Ploetz, shows brightly in this yearbook.

We also greatly appreciated the help given to us by Mr. David McConnell of the Benton Review Publishing Company. We would also like to thank the Durand Manufacturing Company and Mr. Robert Merriman for producing the cover and Mr. Larry Wells of the Associates Engraving Company. A special thanks goes to Mrs. Dompke and Mrs. Schultz from Root Studios along with all the photographers.

The Sports Department expresses its sincere thanks to Mr. Bob Casterline of the Arlington Day and to Mr. Bob Frisk of Paddock Publications.

A final note of thanks goes to the following people, the members of the Heights staff, who rendered their time and services for a better Heights:

To Sue,
There is an old saying that goes, there are golden ships, there are silver ships, but the best ship is friendship
mayed always have yours
yours till the Indian Ocean has a purpose, & yours till Niagara falls.
